Japan Seizes Peiping; 3,000 Troops March In

CHINESE TOLD 'WICKED RULERS' ARE DRIVEN OUT

Manchu King May Sit on Throne.

PEIPING, Aug. 8.—(AP)—The Japanese army impressively took ancient Peiping under its protection today. This capital of the emperors during China's ages of magnificence became for all practical purposes a Japanese city.

The change was emphasized by the entry of 3,000 Japanese soldiers, a brigade commanded by Maj. Gen. Torashimo Kawabe, who paraded into the city in full war equipment to take over garrison duties here.

For their entry the Japanese chose the broadest boulevards, including that leading past the former imperial palace in the forbidden city, through many of the gaudy arches of triumph erected to proclaim the past glories of imperial China.

Planes Roar Overhead.

As the brigade came in Japanese army planes roared overhead, dropping leaflets which proclaimed:

"Both the Chinese people and North China always will be Northern Chinese. The Japanese army has driven out your wicked rulers and their wicked armies and will keep them out.

"Although Nanking is preparing to wage a destructive war, do not be afraid.

"The Japanese army will protect you!"

Although Japan has maintained an embassy guard of several hundred men in Peiping throughout the month long undeclared war in North China and since 1901, under terms of the Boxer protocol, Gen. Kawabe's entry evidently was intended as notice that a new régime of Japanese domination has begun.

Guard Temple of Heaven.

After marching his men to the embassy quarter Gen. Kawabe assigned units to various posts throughout the city, where none of the foreign embassy guards have been stationed heretofore.

It was understood one Japanese unit would be stationed at the historic Temple of Heaven and its immense surrounding park. Frequently in the past Chinese troops have been quartered at this temple, where the emperors of China conducted their annual worship of the Supreme Being.

Chinese crowds watched the entry impassively, apparently accepting the inevitable with no show of hostility. Among Chinese, however, there was speculation as to whether the new régime was preparing for a return to Peiping of the former boy emperor of China, Tsuan Tung [Henry Pu-yi], who since 1934 has been Emperor Kang Teh of Manchukuo.

[Many Japanese imperialists and the Chinese entourage of Emperor Kang Teh are known to favor restoration of the emperor to his old "dragon throne" in Peiping, from which he would reign over North China as well as Manchukuo — of course, under Japan's direction.]

Marches In with Tanks.

Gen. Kawabe's brigade has been operating southwest of Peiping since early in the conflict. Recently it was reported to have been relieved by another Japanese unit in positions along the Peiping-Hankow railway some twenty-five miles below this city.

It marched in with fifty trucks, ten heavy and five light tanks, and considerable cavalry.

Earlier in the day Japanese soldiers raided offices of the Chinese government radio administration near the embassy quarter and confiscated vital equipment, cutting Peiping's last Chinese controled link with the outside world.

The Chinese land wires out of Peiping went out of commission more than a week ago.

Jap Control Extended.

In Tientsin Japanese control was extended when the Japanese co-commissioner of the Chinese salt administration announced he had taken charge of the Tientsin district of the administration. That district, including the Changlu salt fields, is one of the richest in China, formerly pro-

CUBS TAKE TWO FROM BEES; SOX AND BOSTON SPLIT

The Cubs won a double-header from the Boston Bees at Wrigley field yesterday, 3 to 0 and 3 to 2. Carleton yielded only one hit in the first game.

The Boston Red Sox whipped the White Sox, 7 to 6, in the first game of yesterday's double-header for their twelfth straight victory and Chicago's seventh straight defeat, but Chicago came back in the second game to triumph, 13 to 0. John Whitehead allowed only four hits and Zeke Bonura hit his 18th home run with the bases full.

COURT INQUIRY TO DELAY BABY CASE SOLUTION

Searching Adoption Quiz Planned.

Judge Jarecki.

It may be weeks before little Donald Horst gets a permanent home, and then it may not be that of either his foster or his actual parents. This was indicated yesterday as County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki prepared to hear the adoption petition of the foster parents this morning.

Pointing out that the law favors the blood parents in awarding custody of a child, Judge Jarecki declared that a careful investigation will be made before the case is decided. First the court will investigate the fitness of Lydia Lavin, Donald's mother, who uses the name of his father, John Regan. Then the court will investigate the foster parents, Otto and Martha Horst.

Plans Inquiry Into Horsts' Past.

Judge Jarecki said he would inquire into the Horsts' past. Otto Horst, known as "Dutch" on the near west side, was formerly the owner of the Z-Grand hotel, now called the Randel, at 40-42 North Halsted street, the scene of several vice raids by Des Plaines street police.

Thus the case has been but little simplified by the Lydia Regan's action Saturday in signing papers consenting to Donald's adoption by the Horsts. The ultimate welfare of Donald, regardless of the clothes and toys lavished on him by his foster parents, will be the main interest of Judge Jarecki.

A Question of Citizenship.

Horst has admitted that his citizenship papers were canceled in 1924 after he said he got into some trouble over a girl.

Neighbors of the Horsts in their spacious home at 6189 McClellan avenue, said yesterday that it had only been rented by them for the summer. Until recently Donald's home was the Randel hotel.

Principals Disappear.

Only a young colored woman, wearing red earrings, was present yesterday at the Horst home, whence Donald was kidnaped by his real parents last Tuesday. She said she had worked for Horst "for a long time." John E. Johnson, an assistant attorney general representing the Horsts in the child case, attempted vainly to reach his client at the residence yesterday.

Meanwhile, the Regans also had disappeared from their home at 4539 West Congress street.

Without disclosing her whereabouts Mrs. Horst called St. Vincent's orphanage last night to ask about the boy.

Uneasy About Him.

"I was just uneasy about him," she told the Catholic sister who answered the phone. "Is he crying much? Is he well? And does he ask for me?"

To this torrent of questions the nurse gave reassuring answers. When told that a slight fever he had Saturday had subsided and that his 2½ year old mind was quickly adapting itself to the new surroundings, Mrs. Horst seemed pleased, the nurse said.

Authorities will proceed today to wind up another angle of the many sided case. City Prosecutor Michael Rosinia will go before Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court to ask a warant for Dr. John A. Rose, 900 South Western avenue. Dr. Rose made out a birth certificate stating that Donald was born to Mrs. Horst. The physician is a business partner of Horst in a radio concern.

Fred Ewert, 2631 West 23d street, Dr. Rose's chauffeur, who helped the Regans kidnap their own son, was released by the Marquette police after no victims identified him in any crimes at the detective bureau showup yesterday.

400 PLANES TO BATTLE FOR LONDON IN A TEST OF BRITAIN'S DEFENSES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Great Britain's defenses against hostile air raiders, particularly the defenses of London, will be tested beginning tomorrow night in mass air exercises, the biggest ever held.

Four hundred planes, twice the total used last year, will participate. This includes the defending fleet of 222 planes. In addition there will be ground defenses, consisting of civilian observer corps, and forces to man searchlights and anti-aircraft guns. Bombing raids by nearly 200 planes will be concentrated against targets around London, Colchester, Andover and Martlesham, Suffolk.

SIX HOODLUMS FREE TWO PALS IN RAID ON JAIL

Six hoodlums raided the Oak Lawn village police station while the lockup keeper was out last night and freed two Chicago pals, one an ex-convict, who were being held on minor charges.

The prisoners freed were Steve Casper, alias Miller, 32 years old, 1840 West 46th street, and John Filas, 20, of 4622 Honore street. Casper has served two terms in Joliet penitentiary for burglary and larceny. Filas has served two sentences in the House of Correction for tampering with an automobile and violation of probation.

They were arrested early Sunday by Sergt. George Talsma of the Oak Lawn police, who suspected them of tampering with automobiles. He formally charged them with disorderly conduct, and scheduled them to appear in justice court today.

Shortly after 11 o'clock last night, Sergt. Talsma left the station to make a regular patrol. He is half of the two man police force, and with the two prisoners in the lockup, he had to double as lockup keeper and patrolman. During his absence the six hoodlums drove up in a green sedan, entered the station, sprung the cell door lock, and freed Filas and Casper.

Louisiana Girl Flogs Man as 100 Look On

New Orleans, La., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—With more than 100 neighbors and others looking on with apparent approval, a pretty girl, 17 years old, publicly flogged a man nearly three times her age. The girl was Miss Eloise Willis, the man Oscar Kay, 47 years old, a WPA workman.

Eloise Willis. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

Gossip inspired the flogging. Kay is alleged to have made derogatory remarks and "told tales" about the Willis girl. Gossip is dangerous in these parts. Only last month Jessie Pepper, 17, shot and killed May Elvin Allen, also 17, near Coushatta in a fight started by gossip.

The whipping of Kay turned out to be somewhat of a family affair, with Eloise in the stellar rôle. The groundwork was laid by her brother, Alfred R. Willis, when he called on Kay and told him, Kay says, that a WPA foreman wanted to see him.

Beaten by Men Folk.

Kay suspected nothing and accompanied the youth to the Willis home. There he was greeted by another brother, Robert, and the father, Alfred C. Willis. The father and two sons, one at a time, gave Kay a shellacking with their fists. Eloise stood near by. A crowd of neighbors and others gathered.

The Willises then stopped beating Kay and tied him to a chinaberry tree in the Willis yard. Eloise brought forth a long thick rope that was doubled. Kay thought it was a steel cable.

With a dramatic flourish the girl cracked the heavy home-made whip over Kay's back. He screamed. She whacked him again, and then again. The large crowd stood silently by. No one protested or tried to interfere. Eloise swung the whip a few more times, and the public beating was over.

Mr. Willis went to the telephone and called police. "We just whipped a man; come over and get him," he said.

Find Victim in Yard.

Sergt. John Adams hurried over. He found Kay moaning in the yard, with welts on his back and legs, and bumps on his head.

Adams arrested Willis and Eloise. They were formally charged with assault and battery and released by Judge William J. O'Hara pending a conference with the district attorney tomorrow.

Eloise and her father signed formal statements that Kay had spread malicious stories about her. Willis asserted emphatically that "Kay got what he deserved." The nature of the gossip was not revealed. Kay denied his assailants' assertions.

Steal $2,000 Diamond Ring as Film Actress Sleeps

Canton, Ill., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Joseph Hicock, 28, Lawrence, Kas., employed in wrecking a 175 foot concrete smokestack at the Central Illinois Service company heating plant was killed this morning in a fall from a 10 foot fence. He was preparing to climb the stack.

NAZIS ARREST 115 FOR PROTESTING A BAN ON PRAYERS FOR PASTORS

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Police arrested but later released 115 demonstrators who marched through the streets of suburban Dahlem tonight in protest against a ban on public prayer meetings for imprisoned pastors who opposed Nazi church restrictions.

Several hundred members of the Jesus Christ church of the Rev. Martin Niemoeller, Protestant leader in the fight against government regulation of church affairs and wartime submarine commander, joined in the march.

They started down the streets after learning that police had forbidden a prayer service for Niemoeller which was to follow the regular Sunday evening sermon. Niemoeller goes to trial on Tuesday, charged with opposing Nazi church restrictions.

QUACK CAN TELL BAD LIVER JUST BY A FOOTSTEP!

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

"Dr." William J. Elmore is outstanding, even among those arrested last week in the state department of registration and education drive against medical quacks, for his unfaltering methods. He did not wait to find out what ailed a TRIBUNE reporter who visited him before he quickly said: "Can I help you? Why, I can cure you, ab-so-lu-te-ly. You'll get immediate results, too."

The reporter called on him June 17 in his second floor flat at 6334 Roosevelt road after a woman investigator for the department of registration and education had paid him $5 for an examination and $2 for a treatment.

The Doc Cuts His Rate.

"I generally charge $5 for the first examination, but in your case it will be only $2," Elmore said heartily. "I may have to cut your treatment short as an insurance man is going to call. I just had a radio stolen out of my new Packard car."

On the door to his office were the words "Dr. Wm. J. Elmore, naprapath, physio-therapist, physical therapy, ultra violet, therapeutics." Red neon signs in his upstairs windows said: "Dr. W. J. Elmore, naprapath." In the living room, furnished with thick rugs and comfortable furniture, was a photograph of the "doctor" in a cap and gown, dominating the room.

Doc Elmore, who holds no license as physician, osteopath, or chiropractor, is a short, cheerful young man with blue eyes, thick, curly, black hair, gold bridgework which shows in his frequent smiles, and a habit of quick speech which runs into stuttering.

Wall Bears Diploma.

In a larger room into which he showed his visitor after assuring her he could cure her a framed photograph of himself and his graduating class from the Chicago College of Naprapathy shared honors with a framed document saying he was a member of the American Association of Medical Hydrology and Physical Therapy.

The college, located at 1628 West Jackson boulevard, likes to have high school graduates, but doesn't insist on it, the reporter learned from a teacher at the school. In a booklet issued by the college it says: "First hand knowledge of the merit of naprapathy is the SUPREME ESSENTIAL as an entrance requirement."

The room was clean, with linoleum on the floor and various electrical machines and lamps about.

Young Doc Elmore stood before the reporter and said waggishly:

"I think you got a little liver trouble. I can tell by looking at your eyes."

"Can you really, doctor?" his visitor asked, admiringly.

"Yeah," he replied, smiling. "Why, I could tell you had a bad liver the minute I heard you coming up the stairs."

"Well, think of that," said the reporter. "I know I haven't had any pep lately."

"I'll fix that," said Doc Elmore, bustling around and handing his visi-

FATHER IS LOST IN VAIN ATTEMPT TO SAVE 2 SONS

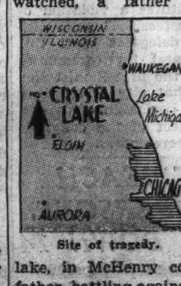
Crystal Lake Scene of Tragedies.

Tragic Outings

Eleven Chicagoans lost their lives yesterday as the result of boating and swimming accidents. Five of them drowned in Crystal lake, in McHenry county; two were given up for dead after having been missing 36 hours on Fox lake, in Lake county; one drowned at Powers lake, near Kenosha, Wis.; one drowned at the Stone lake beach, in La Porte, Ind.; and one in Cedar lake, in Lake county, Ind. One died of injuries suffered while diving at the 76th street beach in Chicago.

(Pictures on back page.)

While scores of picnickers on shore watched, a father and his two small sons drowned yesterday when a rowboat containing nine persons capsized in 50 feet of water on Crystal lake, in McHenry county. Another father, battling against heartbreaking odds to swim the 100 yards to shore with his two daughters, lost his grasp on one and she drowned. He reached shore safely with the other.



Site of tragedy.

The two mothers witnessed the tragedy. All in the boat were Chicagoans.

Even as lifeguards were trying to recover the bodies another Chicagoan, Morris Homel, 45 years old, of 4048 Congress street, drowned when his boat capsized on the opposite side of the lake.

Michael Kasprzycki.

The father and sons who perished were Michael Kasprzycki, 40 years old, of 2243 19th street; Michael Jr., 10, and Edward, 6. The other father was Louis Siegal of 1444 South Kolin avenue. The daughter he saved is Bernice, 13 years old, and the one who drowned was Irma, 11.

Picnickers Rent Rowboat.

Both families had gone to a picnic of Chicagoans at the lake, northwest of Chicago. The picnic ground is at the west end of the lake, where no lifeguards are stationed.

Some of the picnickers rented a rowboat, to which they attached an outboard motor. The boat owner said he warned them not to put more than five persons in the boat, but that there were nine in it when it started out over a deep hole from which gravel is taken.

Suddenly those on shore and persons in other boats saw the picnickers' boat spin around and overturn. Kasprzycki made a desperate but vain attempt to bring his sons ashore. As Siegal tried to take his daughters ashore another girl paddled her way to safety. The rest were rescued by vacationists in other boats.

Two Are Revived.

The crowd on shore had swelled to several hundred when word came of the other tragedy. Chief George Krause of the Crystal Lake fire department and his inhalator squad, summoned for the first drowning, hurried to the east end of the lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Cerver of 1310 Huron street, who were with Homel, had been rescued by life guards. Mrs. Cerver was quickly revived, but for a time it was feared that Cerver was beyond aid. After almost an hour of artificial respiration he was revived by Chief Krause and his squad.

SWEETHEARTS LOST

Two Chicago sweethearts were given up as drowned yesterday in Long lake, in Lake county. They were Miss Lucille Veeck, 24 years old, of 3711 North Richmond street, and Carl Burkart, 24 years old, of 650 Barry avenue.

Visiting friends at the lake, they went out in a rowboat Saturday afternoon. The boat was later found in mid-lake, with Burkart's wallet in it. Fox Lake firemen dragged the waters all day yesterday in an unsuccessful search for the bodies.

Hundreds of vacationists at Powers lake, 25 miles west of Kenosha, Wis., saw a Chicago girl save one Chicagoan from drowning and fail in an effort to save another.

She is Miss Sally Siniawski, 21 years old, of 4034 South Campbell avenue. She was in a canoe when it overturned. Seizing Aloisius Adamczyk, 22 years old, of 4558 South Fairfield avenue, who was riding with her, she dragged him ashore. She then returned for Chester Homozinski, 24 years old, of 1013 West 31st place, but was unable to save him.

Boy Dies of Broken Neck.

His neck broken Saturday when he dived off a pier into three feet of water at the 76th street beach, Henry Bour, 14 years old, of 5002 South Justine street, died last night in the Illinois Central hospital. When he failed to rise after the dive, Lifeguard Jack Gullickson of 7050 East End avenue plunged in after him and brought him ashore.

BOAT CAPSIZES; 4 DIE.

Moline, Ill., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Four persons drowned and two others were rescued today when a small outboard motor boat capsized west of Campbell's Island. Those drowned were William Ragan, 25; Robert Ragan, 19; Marie Ragan, 21, and Lawrence Bering, 26, all of Sterling, Ill.

REJECT PALESTINE PLAN, RABBI WISE URGES ZIONISTS

ZURICH, Switzerland, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York today asked the Zionist world congress flatly to reject the British royal commission's proposal to partition Palestine.

Rabbi Wise called upon Britain "not to make a scrap of paper out of a sacred obligation" — the league of nations mandate by which Britain governs the holy land and has fostered the Jewish national home there. "The British plan is microscopic," the rabbi continued. "The proposal to partition Palestine [into Jewish, Arab and British mandated areas] means the scuttling of British obligations and constitutes a violation of international trusteeship."

Most of the delegates went this afternoon to Basel for ceremonies commemorating the first Zionist congress held in that city forty years ago. Menachen Ussishkin of Jerusalem, president-elect of the congress, presided at the ceremonies.

BOLT AT BEACH KILLS 3 PERSONS, STRIKES DOWN 14

New York, Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Jagged prongs of one great fork of lightning killed three persons in the Rockaway Point area tonight, struck down 14 others while panic spread and a driving rain squall lashed rescuers.

The bolt crackled out of the blackening sky during the freakish storm that began at about noon to mar a day at the metropolitan beaches for hundreds of thousands of sweltering city dwellers.

One of the victims was a 5 year old boy, who with his father and many others had fled for shelter into a shack. The others, a mile away on the stretch of land under coast guard control, were hit as they huddled under beach umbrellas.

Woman Rolls from Bed and Out 2d Story Window

Mrs. Harriet Hart, 42 years old, was seriously injured early today when she fell out of a bedroom window of her second floor apartment at 351 Garfield avenue. Her husband Edward, a mechanic, said that she was sleeping next to the window and evidently rolled out of bed and through the window. She was taken to the Augustana hospital.

YOUTHFUL DIVER INJURED.

Tuscola, Ill., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Wilbur Sauer, son of the Rev. E. H. Sauer of this city, was injured seriously when he dived from a springboard into the Mattoon swimming pool Saturday. He was a freshman at the University of Illinois last term.

FRANCO MASSES ARMY BETWEEN MADRID AND SEA

Strikes to Cut Off Food Supply Lines.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Spanish rebel officers declared today that Generalissimo Francisco Franco's attacks on the Albarracin front were being organized into an offensive designed to paralyze the whole system of government communications east of Madrid.

A rebel advance guard of highly mobile troops, following up well coordinated attacks, was reported already pressing on Salvacanete, key-point on the Cuenca-Teruel highway.

The capture of Salvacanete would plant the red and gold flag of rebel Spain within 30 miles in a direct line of government held Cuenca, provincial capital and center of the whole network of roads which the government is using to link Madrid, Guadalajara and its Teruel front with Valencia and Barcelona.

[Salvacanete, about 120 miles east of Madrid, is the halfway point on the road which runs southwest from rebel held Teruel to Cuenca. Salvacanete is 20 miles south of Albarracin, and the southward drive of the rebels from the latter point recently was reported to have passed Toril, 10 miles north of Salvacanete.]

Village Falls to Rebels.

A rebel communique said the village of Jabaloyas, six miles east of Toril, fell to Franco's advancing troops today and that two government counter-attacks there were thrown back with heavy losses.

A rebel column, the communique said, left Pena de Santa Cruz on this front, to encircle 5,000 government militiamen, said to be in a "difficult situation."

Franco's air forces were reported using a new air base behind Teruel, with underground hangars sheltering 50 planes, as hopping off point for raids on the government lines.

Rebel communiques said Franco's troops south of Albarracin encountered little resistance. However, strong government forces were reported concentrating near Canete, some ten miles southwest of Salvacanete.

While the main rebel thrust was southward from Albarracin, another column was waiting near Teruel for a drive southwestward on the Cuenca highway as soon as the main force reaches Salvacanete.

Ex-Premier Criticizes Valencia.

Former Premier Francisco Largo Caballero has taken an attitude strongly critical of the Spanish government's administration and its conduct of the civil war, the newspaper Independent of Perpignan said today.

"I cannot approve of the erroneous military policy or the discriminatory social attitude" of the present Valencia régime, the paper quoted Largo Caballero in an interview. The newspaper did not say from what city in Spain it obtained the interview. He resigned last May, after six months as premier.

Rebel officers claimed yesterday that an anarchist rebellion had broken out at Albacete and other important Spanish centers and that Largo Caballero was leading the movement. It was asserted there was street fighting in Barcelona between anarchists and communists.

French border reports today said that Catalan police had established a special zone along the French frontier, ten miles deep, to prevent desertions. Special passes were required from citizens wishing to go into the area.

Rightist French newspapers carried Barcelona dispatches that more than thirty leaders of Barcelona political groups had vanished in recent days in a "purge" of leftist ranks.

Italians Quell Mutiny?

MADRID, Aug. 8.—(AP)—The government received reports today of a revolt among Spanish rebel troops at Toledo and that Italian fighters aided in quelling the disorders. This was the first mention of Italians in the Toledo sector, thirty miles south of Madrid.

Disagree on Ship Bombings.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—(AP)—European powers divided today in placing blame for attacks on four merchant ships in the Mediterranean by three "mystery" planes.

The four ships were the tanker British Corporal, the Italian ship Mongiola, whose captain died of wounds; the French cargo boat Djebel Amour, and the Greek steamer K. Ktistakis.

Great Britain blamed the Spanish rebels and awaited an answer to its note of protest to Palma, Mallorca. Italian officials blamed "Red planes," and France made no commitment pending completion of its investigation.

Spanish rebel officials at Salamanca were reported by the Reuter [British] news agency as blaming the Valencia government air force.

REBELS PUSH DRIVE TO ISOLATE MADRID

Arrow points to Salvacanete, present objective of rebel drive to split Madrid's communication lines to Valencia and Barcelona. Rebel columns were moving south from Albarracin and Teruel and war planes were operating out of the base at Teruel.

4 'SPIES' SEIZED, SHOT BY SOVIET BORDER GUARDS

Executed Without Trials; Boys Trap Two.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Aug. 8.—Four men, accused of being spies, were captured and shot by Soviet guards on Russia's western frontier during the last week, the Soviet press revealed today. The press accused the victims of working for capitalistic enemies of the government.

The captives were not tried before being executed, and brief accounts of the executions asserted the four had confessed attempting to enter Russia illegally to engage in espionage.

The Moscow Pravda related how guards stationed on the Polish-White Russian frontier captured a youth, disguised as an old man, who had succeeded in penetrating a triple line of guards before he was caught attempting to cross a railroad bridge.

Three Boys Aid Capture.

The youth at first stated, according to Pravda, that he had entered Russia to engage in missionary work for Baptists, that he had finished a missionary course at a Baptist seminary in Poland and felt called upon to do church work in Russia. However, after lengthy persuasion by his captors, the youth admitted, Pravda declares, that he was a spy.

The Krasnaia Gazette at Leningrad reports another capture of two men on the Finnish frontier. The two were detected when two boys ran to the guards and warned them while another boy pretended to give the men instructions. The captured men claimed they had entered Russia because they were attracted by a propaganda broadcast from a Soviet radio station, but, continues the Gazette, they finally confessed being spies.

Captors Get $200 Each.

Another man, seized on the Estonian-Soviet frontier, declared he wanted to visit relatives living in Leningrad, but after questioning he, too, admitted he was working for a foreign power.

Commissar General Yeshov, chief of the GPU [secret police], rewarded the four vigilant guards and the three boys with a gift of about $200 each, and a similar reward was offered for the detection of other illegal entrants.

VALENCIA CONSIDERS GIVING BARCELONA PART OF MINISTRIES

VALENCIA, Aug. 8.—(AP)—The Spanish government, highly reliable informants said today, is considering removing several ministries to Barcelona. Barcelona and Valencia would thus become joint capitals of government Spain, but the greater part of the government set-up would remain in Valencia, to which it was transferred from Madrid last November.

Public works, justice, and labor were named as the ministries which may be transferred to the Catalan City. President Manuel Azana also was expected to resume residence in Barcelona.

The transfer was attributed to crowded conditions in Valencia and for tightening the bond between the central [Madrid-Valencia] and the autonomous Catalan government.

FAST PASSENGER TRAIN DERAILED; HUNT WRECKERS

Carlyle, Ill., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Discovery of a dented steel plate on one rail spurred an investigation tonight of a plot to wreck the "Diplomat," fast Baltimore and Ohio passenger train which was derailed near here late today with more than 150 passengers aboard.

The 8 by 12 inch tie plate, still spiked to the rail, was found by members of the crew a short time after the accident. The engine and tender of the train crashed down a twenty foot embankment, but the engineer and fireman escaped injury. The twelve coaches left the rails, but did not overturn.

POLICE ASKED TO HUNT WOMAN.

Police were asked yesterday to search for Mrs. Dorothy Mader, 21 years old, who has been missing for ten days with her daughters, Patricia Ann, 2 years old, and Marilyn, 1 year old. Mrs. Mader's mother, Mrs. Mary Gebhard, with whom the young mother lived at 7652 Eggleston avenue, requested the search.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

The Polish pageant, a Charter Jubilee attraction which drew 50,000 spectators to Soldiers' field last night, depicted 100 years of contributions to Chicago by its Polish-American citizens—the largest national group in the city.

Five thousand marchers in brilliant costumes braved a drizzling rain to open the program with a parade. The marchers were members of the twenty-two Polish-American organizations which sponsored the event.

By the time the parade was over the rain had stopped and the pageant proper opened with whooping Indians storming a log stockade to massacre its defenders.

First Settlement Portrayed.

Actors portraying veterans of the Polish insurrection of 1831-'32 appeared in a covered wagon. They entered the replica of a stockade on the Rock river in a land grant given them by President Andrew Jackson.

Hard on the heels of the pioneers came Blackhawk's savage Indian warriors. The raid on the stockade marked the beginning in 1934 of the Blackhawk war, which lasted until 1837 and united historical figures of America with those of Poland.

A torchlight parade pictured the campaign of William B. Ogden for mayor of Chicago. Two Poles cast their votes for Ogden, Chicago's first chief executive.

Rôle of Poles Shown.

The pageant showed gallant deeds of Polish citizens in the civil war, the founding of the first Polish community in Chicago, the great fire, the mass immigration of Poles to Chicago beginning in 1873, native dances showing the development of Polish culture, Polish heroism in the world war, and the present Polish youth program.

Fireworks spectacles were scattered through the pageant and a fireworks inscription, "I Will," depicting the spirit with which young Poland looks to the future, ended the program as searchlights zigzagged in the air.

Honor guest at the observance was Mrs. Mary Adelman, 109 years old, 614 West 47th street. She was introduced by Paul Drymalski, chairman of the pageant, as Chicago's oldest Polish-American.

5,000 PILSUDSKI WARRIORS HEAR PLEA FOR UNITY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CRACOW, Poland, Aug. 8.—Garbed in flags, Poland's ancient capital today was host to 5,000 Pilsudski legionnaires. They held their twelfth reunion in the city from which the late marshal, then Capt. Josef Pilsudski, marched 23 years ago with a battalion of volunteers organized and trained by himself to attack a Russian garrison less than 100 miles away.

Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, successor to Pilsudski as "strong man" of Poland, made a plea for unity in an address. He asked them to support the government's program, which, he said, requires them to work to improve "Poland's primitive standard of living."

He said Poland's safety calls for a strong army and a strong hand to preserve internal peace. He also advocated that state officials become a disciplined unit, "cooperating to strengthen our country."

MDIVANI ROMANCE

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Honey Johnson, whose engagement to Prince David Mdivani is expected to be announced soon.

Prince David's mind undoubtedly was wandering as he danced at a party with Miss F. Glendening.

ROME, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Friends of Prince David Mdivani, last of the three "marrying Mdivanis," said today his engagement to Miss Muriel "Honey" Johnson of Bronxville, N. Y., soon would be announced.

Mdivani, who was divorced from Mae Murray in 1933, met Miss Johnson, a striking blonde, ten days ago at the Hotel Venice, where she is staying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. F. Johnson.

Persons close to them said they wished to marry immediately but Miss Johnson's parents objected and the plan was postponed. They said the couple would go on a cruise together for a few days with Mrs. José Maria Sert and Mrs. Denis Conan Doyle, sister of Mdivani, aboard Mrs. Sert's yacht.

David Mdivani is the sole survivor of the three Georgian brothers whose names have popped in and out of social and theatrical registers for the last ten years. Alexis, once the husband of the former Barbara Hutton, was killed in an automobile accident in Spain in 1936 and a few months late his brother, Serge, once the husband of Pola Negri and Mary McCormic, was killed in a polo accident.

BOY HANGING ON TRUCK HURT BY STREET CAR

Knocked to Street; Injured Critically.

John E. Blackley Jr., 16 years old, 1428 Jackson boulevard, was knocked from the side of a truck by a street car yesterday and critically injured. Blackley was one of a party of picnickers bound for an outing at Slocum lake. The accident occurred in front of 2201 Milwaukee avenue.

William Rohwedder, 41, motorman of the street car, said he saw Blackley hanging over the side of the truck, but was unable to stop the car in time to avoid striking him. The youth was taken to the North Avenue hospital.

Highway Policeman Killed.

State Highway Policeman Frank Tamulis was killed early today when he drove his motorcycle into the rear of a truck in Southwest highway, near 90th street and east of Cicero avenue, outside the village of Oak Lawn. He was 26 years old, and lived at 4344 South Hermitage avenue. Cornelius Kros of Evergreen Park, the truck driver, told highway police in Blue Island that the rear lights of his truck were burning at the time of the accident.

John Davis, 37, 3121 Sheffield avenue, was killed and three were injured in a collision between two automobiles at Pulaski road and 159th street, Midlothian. Those injured were Davis' wife, Lillian, 31; Philip Nattof, 35, driver of the other car, and Donald Levin, 51, both of 15 Marmora avenue.

Victim of Hit and Run Driver.

A hit and run car killed John Huzeor, 48 years old, 5140 North Meade avenue, last night as he was crossing Higgins road at Meade avenue.

Mrs. Mattie Pierce, 40, colored, 4801 St. Lawrence avenue, died yesterday in the Oak Park hospital of injuries incurred Saturday night when he was struck at Oak Park avenue and Greenfield street, Oak Park, by the automobile of Richard Derr, 20, 1400 South 57th court, Cicero.

John Dykstra, 52 years old, 1115 North Lawndale avenue, was fatally injured last night at North and California avenues when he was struck by a car driven by John Stanko, 27, of 2714 North Melvina avenue. He died in the Danish-American hospital.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 620 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. Of these, 479 were killed in Chicago, where 13,257 were injured in the same period.

QUACK CAN TELL BAD LIVER JUST BY A FOOTSTEP!

Promises Cure, Then Hunts for Ailments.

His Methods Described

Marks Back with Pencil.

He left the room and returned with his smile in perfect condition. He began marking the spine in little sections with a pencil, but before he had finished, set to work kneading it with enthusiasm. Here, likewise, he was unfaltering. He bore down with gusto, talking boisterously.

"Knocks the breath out of you, don't it?" he laughingly asked.

"I hate to be a baby," his visitor at last said, "but this certainly is painful."

He laughed delightedly. "That's all right," he said, "I like babies, I know how to take care of 'em."

He told about the woman patient who had been in a coma with pneumonia. The doctors had given her up when he was called in. In one treatment she was out of it; in a few more, cured.

Doc Elmore and the Stork.

Another patient of his had complained of not being able to have a child.

"She'd been married seven years when she come to me," he said. "First thing you know, after a few treatments, she—well, in time she had a big, bouncing boy." He paused, then asked delicately: "Did you say you was married?"

"No," his visitor said.

"O," he said.

After the examination, which consisted of pressing on first one side of the spine and then the other and asking which hurt the worse, Doc Elmore said it appeared his patient had a touch of arthritis.

But He Can Cure It!

He would not say how long it would take, but she would be cured if she would take three or four treatments a week for an indefinite period.

"We always use the cushions of our hands, never the knuckles," he explained. He pointed to a spot just above his wrist. "This here's contact A. You only use that in one place on the spine. Here's B and C. I got the whole alphabet right here in my fingers."

"How do you remember all of them?" the visitor asked, awed.

"That's what I went to school to learn," he said. "Took me three whole years to learn—well, three years in two."

And So from Bone to Bone.

In his enthusiasm Doc Elmore leaped from subject to subject and bone to bone.

"This here's the treatment we give for female trouble," he said, pushing mightily on the thigh bones.

"But I don't have any such trouble," his visitor said.

"Now just give me that leg," he continued to the reporter, who was lying on her stomach. He grasped the ankle and moved the leg up and down vigorously, so that the patient was kicking herself.

"Just let me have the other leg now," he said, repeating the performance and panting from his exertion. He then went up and down the leg pinching and punching, saying: "Is it sore here? I thought so. What about here? And here, too?"

He stood back, breathing hard. "You're sore all over," he pronounced. "The trouble wit' you, girl, is that you need a good overhaulin'."

"Where it's very sore, is that where the treatment is needed most?" his visitor asked.

"I'll say it is," he laughed.

While his visitor still lay on her stomach, he said indulgently, "I'm going to give you a t'rill now."

A Cold Thrill.

She felt cold liquid on her back.

"It's just alcohol," he said playfully, rubbing it in.

He told her to lie on her back and busied himself with a machine, placing black pads on each shoulder of his patient and one under the back. The latter, he said, was for the liver.

"Feel it going clear through to the liver?" he asked.

Authorities at Northwestern university medical school, consulted later, said it was impossible for any such heat to go through to the liver, and that it probably would be harmful if it did.

His Wonderful Machine.

"This is a wonderful machine," Elmore continued. "It's very powerful. I've set it at 40,000 for you. Later when you are better and these injured dead tissues in your spine are all right, you won't be able to take more than a few thousand, but today I'm giving you a lot."

"What about this liver—is it serious, doctor?" the reporter asked.

"Well," he said, and paused significantly—"it can be cured. Now listen, girl, don't worry about nuttin'. I'll fix you up."

He left his patient under the machine for twenty minutes or more, returned and jerked her head to one side, then another. It didn't jerk successfully, and he repeated the process.

"It certainly makes a noise when those bones pop," she said.

"That's chiropractic, and I'll explain how it works," he said. "It expands the tissues. They've been all tight, and no blood has gotten in, and the blood vessels get full of air.

"When you give them pressure like this the air is let out all of a sudden, and that's what makes that noise. Of course the blood flows in then and that's what you need."

He applied a stethescope, complimented his patient on having a good heart, and told her to stand up.

"I'm going to give you a bath," he said delightedly.

She demurred. "You wait," he said roguishly, and turned on an ultraviolet ray lamp. "I meant a bath of light! This is the real thing. Burns, but don't blister."

His patient paid him $2 and prepared to go.

"Don't you feel a lot better?" he asked, beaming.

JAPAN BELIEVES WAR WILL EXTEND TO ALL OF CHINA

Army Blocks Moves for Peace, Press Hints.

TOKIO, Aug. 8.—(AP)—The Japanese press, almost without exception, today took the attitude that there is little hope of preventing the month old North China conflict from developing into a war of national proportions.

The newspapers took it for granted that more extended military operations impended in China. Some hinted that powerful influences in Tokio—presumably the army—were working to block any diplomatic settlement of the crisis.

There was no news of actual combat in China today, but the press emphasized that what began as a local clash at Marco Polo bridge the night of July 7 had grown into a conflict which may greatly alter the destinies of Japan, China, and much of Asia.

Objectives Remain Secret.

Japanese correspondents in China described ominous preparations there for nation-wide resistance to Japan's advance. The Tokio high command was described as equally determined to meet any Chinese challenge with all the might of the Japanese empire.

Beyond vague announcements that it seeks no territorial annexations in China, the government's definite objectives and ambitions with regard to China remained secret. But the influential newspaper Nichi Nichi remarked significantly that "the nation must be ready for further sacrifices, which surely will be the starting point for a new Japan."

The government must avoid dangerous makeshifts, the Nichi Nichi, which follows an aggressive and nationalistic policy, said. Otherwise Japan will lose all her trade in the Yangtze river valley, from the main cities of which all Japanese civilians already have withdrawn.

The Nichi Nichi's correspondent at Nanking gave an outline of Chinese military preparations calculated to convince Japanese they cannot avoid a real war. His dispatch said:

"Regarding a decisive battle with Japan as inevitable, Chiang Kai-shek [the Chinese dictator] has decided to order Chinese troops along the whole line to start advancing in a major offensive.

"Chiang Kai-shek himself will supervise the land, sea, and air forces, with Gen. Pai Tsung-hsi [Kwangsi war lord] as his chief of staf. Gen. Yen Hsi-shan [governor of Shansi] will command the left wing, Gen. Han Fu-chu [governor of Shantung] the right wing, and Gen. Liu Shih [governor of Honan] will lead the central army at the front.

"The Chinese troops will advance from three directions, along the Peiping-Suiyuan, Peiping-Hankow, and Tientsin-Pukow railways. Fifty thousand Chinese communists will operate as a detached force. Irregular forces, such the Blue Shirts society, will harrass the Japanese rear."

Peace Proponents at Work.

NANKING, Aug. 9 [Monday].—(AP)—Highly placed Chinese said today that influential proponents of peace were working both in Japan and China to prevent the North China conflict from developing into a general war.

Nanking leaders watched for the next move of Shigeru Kawagoe, the Japanese ambassador, who returned to Shanghai Saturday from the north and was expected to come to Nanking. It was admitted, however, that the greatest difficulty would be encountered in finding even a basis from which to begin negotiations.

Grant Permit for Girl, 14, to Wed

GET A LICENSE

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—When Gertrude Antoinette Vourilier, 14, is married to Edmond Scott, 22, she will be this city's youngest bride. When the couple sought a marriage license they found they needed the consent of the girl's parents and court permission before it could be issued. The parents agreed, and so did Superior Judge Harris after he questioned the couple, so they got the license.

ASKS ROOSEVELT WHY U. S. TROOPS REMAIN IN CHINA

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Representative Tinkham [Rep., Mass.] called on President Roosevelt today to explain whether his "failure" to recall American troops from China is due to a secret agreement with Great Britain.

The bewhiskered member of the house foreign affairs committee said he would introduce a resolution for a congressional investigation to determine whether such an agreement was negotiaed when Walter Runciman, president of the British Board of Trade, visited here last January.

Tinkham said Great Britain had been seeking since 1901 to involve this country in the far east "for her own purposes."

BRITISH MINISTER VOICES APOLOGY TO NEGRO BISHOP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Sir John Simon, British chancellor of the exchequer, has expressed his regrets, it was announced tonight, to Bishop William Heard, 87 year old American Negro who recently was the victim of a color bar incident at an Edinburgh hotel.

Sir John and Lady Simon met Bishop Heard in Glasgow. The meeting was arranged at the chancellor's request. Simon is said to have waxed indignant over the incident and the aged bishop, it was understood, expressed appreciation of the chancellor's sympathy.

Bishop Heard, representing the African Methodist Episcopal Church of America, is the oldest delegate to the world conference on faith and order, in session at Edinburgh.

50 Houses Destroyed in $138,000 Mexican Fire

DURANGO, Mexico, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Fifty houses were destroyed by fire last night in the lumber town of El Salto, southwest of Durango, after an upset gasoline lamp started a blaze that spread destruction through the heart of the town. The damage was estimated at $138,000.

CHINA WILL FIGHT, PREDICTS WIDOW OF SUN YAT-SEN

Sees Chiang Leading His Army Against Japs.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Aug. 8.—Mme. Sun Yat-sen, widow of the founder of the Chinese republic and its first president, today broke her long silence and in an exclusive interview with THE TRIBUNE expressed the opinion that a general war with Japan is practically certain.

Mme. Sun Yat-sen.

She said she is convinced that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, dictator of China, ultimately will lead the Chinese armies against the Japanese aggressors.

"The national government long has been handicapped and hamstrung due to Japanese elements occupying high positions," she said, "but these elements soon will be eliminated, enabling the Chinese people to make their voice and influence felt in the nation's councils.

Nation's Leaders Warned.

"You must remember that the Chinese people are honest and patriotic and will not submit permanently to unrepresentative leadership. In the event the leaders do not exert themselves and make a stand for the preservation of the nation, the people will discard the leaders and make their own patriotic stand.

"That happened in North China where certain leaders, who were involved in Japanese intrigue, agreed to terms of the Japanese aggressors, but the rank and file of troops and younger officers repudiated their action and called for justice. They suffered terrible punishment, but earned the gratitude of the Chinese people."

Mme. Sun before her marriage was Ching Ling Soong. Her sisters are the wives of Chiang and Dr. H. H. Kung, minister of finance. Her brother is T. V. Soong, foremost banker of China and former minister of finance.

She was graduated from Wesleyan College for Women at Macon, Ga., in 1911. She married Dr. Sun in 1915.

SERBIAN CHURCH BANS CABINET CHIEFS WHO BACK VATICAN PACT

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Priests of the Serbian Orthodox church read from their pulpits today a list of cabinet and parliament members banned for fostering a concordat with the Roman Catholic church

In Belgrade the congregations crowding the churches listened in silence, but in some country churches worshipers shouted "Let them be damned" after each name.

The government officials, who have been ordered to appear before the chief ecclesiastical court on charges of offending the Orthodox church, included Premier Dr. Milan Stoyadinovitch, Finance Minister Dushan Letitsa, Agriculture Minister Svetozar Stankovitch, Minister of Education Dobrivoye Stoshovitch, and six other cabinet ministers and parliament members. Priests may not enter the homes of banned persons or perform church functions for them.

The concordat, which the Orthodox church contends would diminish its prestige, is to be considered by the senate in the fall. It has been passed by the lower house.

ducing for the Chinese finance ministry about $3,000,000 a year.

Salt is a government monopoly in China and foreigners hold office in the administration because several foreign loans are secured on the salt revenues.

A spokesman for the Japanese embassy here, commenting on expressed fears of American and other foreign missionaries that Japanese domination will mean suppression or persecution of their work in North China, "American missions need not fear interference with their religious work in this region," the spokesman said. "Their Chinese workers, of all descriptions, likewise will not be affected unless it is proved that they are engaging in anti-Japanese or other subversive activities, which will depend entirely on them."

ROOSEVELT WILL 'GO TO COUNTRY' FOR A 'MANDATE'

Seeks New Backing for Social Schemes.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt, it was learned today, has decided to "go to the country" in the congressional elections next year on these two questions:

1. Shall federal control and regimentation of industry and agriculture, declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court, be reestablished?

2. Shall the power of the Supreme court to invalidate acts of congress be annulled, subject to review by congress or otherwise restricted?

Defeated by his party in his undertaking to pack the Supreme court to obtain reversal of its invalidation of his social and economic innovations, the President now contemplates seeking an amendment of the constitution, not to broaden federal powers over industry and agriculture but to curb the power of the court to declare such extensions of federal authority unconstitutional.

Could Try Amendment.

If the people should elect, to the senate and house a sufficient number of supporters of the President on his proposals the constitutional amendment would be submitted to the states by the next congress.

Mr. Roosevelt will raise the curtain on his campaign in a speech he is scheduled to make Sept. 17 in celebration of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the constitution. He will speak from a stand at the base of the Washington monument. The speech will be broadcast and will be directed particularly to dinners and other meetings sponsored by the Good Neighbor league and the United States constitutional sesquicentennial commission.

The Good Neighbor league, which is an adjunct of the Democratic national committee, has been reorganized and is expected to become a powerful force as a Roosevelt propaganda agency, stressing the humanitarian ncte, in the 1938 elections.

Seeks Broad Interpretation.

Although lauding the constitution in general terms the President in this opening speech of his new campaign is expected to present his thesis for interpretation of the charter so broad as to enfold with the mantle of validity any solution of current social and economic problems which the executive and legislative branches of the government write into law. Then as the congressional election canvass opens early next year Mr. Roosevelt will take to the radio and even may stump the country in behalf of his cause.

The President is determined upon the reincarnation of the AAA and the NRA, the destruction of which by the Supreme court sent the structure of his social and economic program for attaining the "more abundant life" tumbling about his head.

In the Guffey coal control act and the pending wages and hours bill some features of the NRA already are being revived. Mr. Roosevelt also is demanding new crop control legislation similar to the outlawed provisions of the AAA and is threatening to suspend cotton, wheat, corn, and other crop loans until he gets it.

Would Invade State Rights.

The Democratic platform of 1936 proposed that if social reforms could not be effected under the terms of constitution as it stands a "clarifying amendment" extending federal power into the realm of the states should be submitted.

The President, however, is not disposed to follow his party platform in this respect. It is not an amendment of the constitution to enlarge federal authority over industry and agriculture that he contemplates, but an amendment to control the interpretation of the constitution.

Without an amendment enlarging federal powers over private enterprise a revived AAA and NRA could not stand unless one of two things should happen. The Supreme court might reverse itself on these questions as it did on the minimum wage and some other matters at the last term. Or the court might be curbed under the terms of the constitutional amendment the President has in mind.

Summer Comes to North; Labrador Ships in Ice

BATTLE HARBOR, Labrador, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Ice has become scarce in this land where many persons think there is a perpetual supply of it. Ten tons, imported from Halifax, N. S., arrived here aboard an auxiliary schooner for use in packing salmon. The scarcity of icebergs in the Belle Isle straits during the summer made it necessary to import the ice for distribution in settlements where none has been available for packing since the spring breakup.

I'd rather have your friendly liking than any other thing I could name. We'd earn it, too, and keep it for years, if you'll come and dine with us tonight, any night. Won't you bring the family?

City Asks Delay on Start of Sanitary Canal Bridge

Because the $700,000 pledged by the government has not been appropriated the city has asked an extension of a year in the time set for beginning construction of a $1,700,000 bridge across the sanitary canal at Western avenue. The original day for beginning work was next Saturday.

25,000 HONOR ITALIAN SAINT IN GAY FIESTA

Crowd Parades Statue of San Rocco.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Twenty-five thousand Chicagoans in whose veins runs Italian blood congregated in the neighborhood of Ada and Ohio streets last night to pay homage to San Rocco di Modugno, Italian saint, in their 25th annual fiesta.

Yesterday was the second day of the group's three day festival, which will end near dawn tomorrow. Since 1912 the second Sunday of August has been set aside as the center of a week-end of celebration.

For the occasion the streets were decorated to resemble an Italian village on a feast day. Flowers bloomed in every window sill.

Gay Stalls Crowd Curbs.

Food vendors had gay stalls along the curbs. Sea crabs boiled in salamanders. Yard long loaves of bread were stacked a yard high. Wine flowed freely. Braziers, for roasting pistachio nuts, sent curls of smoke toward chains of colored lights hung across the street.

Primarily, however, the spectacle was of a religious nature, with an enormous statute of San Rocco as the central figure. Shining with gilt and silver, its pedestal hidden beneath fresh flowers, it was drawn through the streets by an ever widening circle of men and boys.

As the procession went on its way and the night grew old pink and white satin ribbons streaming from the saint's staf became covered with $1, $2, and $5 bills, held in place with safety pins.

Keeps Evil Away.

"It's to pay for the fireworks," explained one smiling Italian, as he pinned another bill in place. "And to keep evil away," interposed another.

The fête is sponsored by the Congregazione di M. S. San Rocco di Modugno, a benevolent association. Various other societies, such as the Societa San Michele, join in the celebration.

The saint whom the festival honors was a 13th century prince of Montpellier who renounced his throne, divided his worldly goods among the poor, and set out on a trek to Rome. On his way he wandered into a town beset by the plague and tended the sick. He returned to Montpellier so disfigured by the plague, the legend runs, that he was unknown and was thrown into prison, where he died.

HOME LOOTED OF CASH AND GEMS.

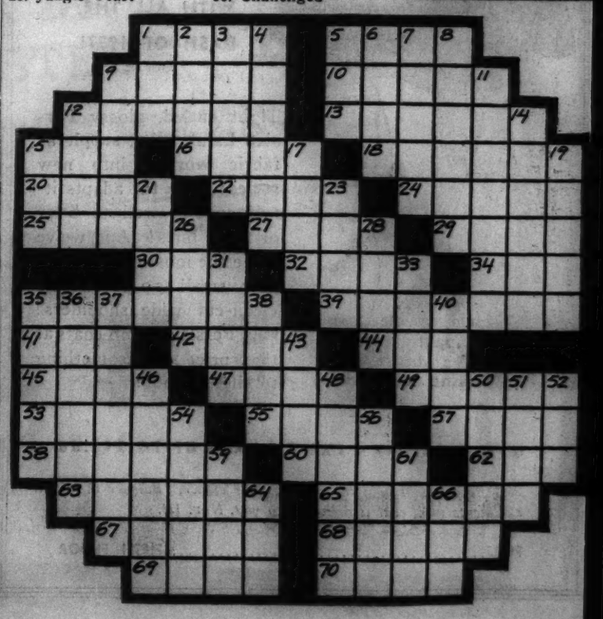
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



NAZI CROP, FEED RULES TIGHTENED TO ASSURE BREAD

Grain Harvest 10 Per Cent Below Average.

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Faced with the prospect of grain harvests at least 10 per cent below average, Germany today applied rigid control of her farm output to insure adequate food supplies for the coming winter.

"Give us this day our daily bread," was the official slogan issued to reich farmers, but it was a command, not a prayer, and was backed by iron-clad decrees as to what the farmer can do with his own crop.

The entire wheat and rye crop was ordered placed at the disposal of the government marketing organization except for small amounts to be held for family needs and next spring's sowing.

Fines as High as $46,000.

No bread grains may be fed to live stock and the farmer knowingly disregarding this decree will be subject to fines ranging up to 100,000 marks [$40,000] or even more if a court finds the infraction "especially obnoxious."

Such rigorous measures are designed to convince even the most stubborn farmer it does not pay to feed rye to pigs. A less stern measure, however, was expected to achieve the same end. Corn was offered farmers at a price, delivered, $8 a ton below the market price for rye.

The Nazi bread-grain policy is to use all the reich's available grains for bread and then to import only enough foreign grain to make up the deficiency and to import corn as live stock feed.

In addition sugar beet acreage, which in 1933 produced 120,000 tons of feed, has been greatly increased and is expected to yield 600,000 tons for German live stock.

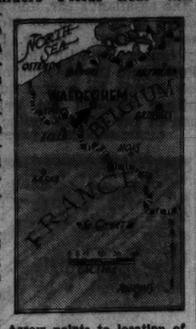
The pork situation, too, seems better.

One foreign expert predicted Germany's food difficulties next winter will be similar to those of previous years, with periodical shortages of eggs and butter, but without anything like famine.

Dedicate U.S. Cemetery in Flanders Field

WAEREGHEM, Belgium, Aug. 8.—(AP)—In Flanders Fields near this sleepy village the American battle monuments commission today dedicated the only American world war cemetery in Belgium.



Arrow points to location of "Flanders Field" cemetery.

Buried here are 368 American soldiers from the 27th, 30th, 37th, and 91st divisions, who joined the British, French, and Belgians in driving back the Germans on this part of the front. The cemetery is named "Flanders Field." In the center of the neat rows of graves is a small chapel with the flags of the allies behind its altar.

Senator F. Ryan Duffy of Wisconsin, member of the official United States delegation, gave the dedicatory address. Hugh S. Gibson, American ambassador to Belgium, said Belgium and the United States would "coöperate by all means toward maintaining peace in the interest of civilization and general welfare." Premier Paul van Zeeland of Belgium paid tribute to the American dead and urged work "for the cause of peace."

At nearby Audenarde a monument commemorating the advance of the Americans in this region was dedicated by C. A. Ragor, deputy commander of the disabled veterans of the World War, and Mrs. Howard C. Boone, president of the American war mothers. Later the group proceeded to Kemmel, near the historic Ypres, where the 27th and 30th divisions of the American army fought. Senator Ernest W. Gibson of Vermont dedicated a memorial and Brig. Gen. J. P. B. Clayton Hill of the monuments commission presided.

150 NAZIS MEET IN KENOSHA AS 75 REDS PICKET

Words Only Are Hurled in Expected "Clash."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Kenosha, Wis., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—While 150 Nazi sympathizers listened to speeches inside the German-American club today, seventy-five pickets, most of them known communists, paraded outside with banners, attempting with little success to sing "America," and chanting that the United States should be preserved for democracy.

This slightly incongruous spectacle was brought on by the annual picnic of the German-American Volksbund, an organization supporting the Hitler régime in Germany and whose members wear pseudo-military uniforms. But the expected clash, feared by the general citizenry, failed to materialize. Instead there was only a battle of words.

Forced to Change Sites.

At first given permission by the city council to hold their picnic in a park, the society was forced to meet in the German-American club when the council revoked the permit after communists, labor union leaders, Socialists, and La Follette men protested.

The Volksbund announced that thousands of delegates from Milwaukee, Racine, and cities outside the state, would attend the gathering today. But a count revealed only twenty-eight members of the local chapter in uniform, about seventy-five other men and women, and fifty children, clad in khaki shorts, who have been attending the society's Hindenburg summer camp.

They stood talking in groups outside the clubhouse until the pickets arrivcd.

Make Sidewalk "Deadline."

Then George Froboese, middle west director of the Volksbund, announced as the crowd moved inside:

"We anticipate no violence as long as you communists stay on the sidewalk. But if you attempt to come up to the doors, it will be just too bad."

His remarks were met with jeers and hoots from the pickets, who made caustic comment on the Volksbund uniform of dark blue trousers, black puttees, Sam Brown belts, and white shirts.

Many of the paraders tried to strike up "America," but the song effort fell flat when it appeared only a few of the pickets knew the words—and tune.

Their banners bore such phrases as: "The Swastika Will Not Fly in the Land of Washington, Jefferson, and Lincoln"; "Which Allegiance—to Hitler or American Democracy?"; "Nazi Murderers, Sadists, and Arsonists Forfeit the Right of Free Speech"; "We Want Democracy, Not Fascism," and "Keep America Safe."

Among the banner toting pickets were Dalton G. Johnson, president of the Kenosha communist party and head of the Common Laborers' union, and Mrs. Nan Clark Blair of Milwaukee, resplendent in a bright red waist. She is the wife of Fred Bassett Blair, state organizer for the communists and former communist gubernatorial candidate.

ROOSEVELT FAR FROM A DECISION ON NEW JUSTICE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt this afternoon postponed for another day his return to the White House, to ponder his selection for the United States Supreme court vacancy, caused by the retirement of Justice Willis Van Devanter last June.

After giving a day of study to the nomination he must submit to the senate Mr. Roosevelt was not near a decision. This morning, he said, he might be ready to return to the capital during the day, but by late afternoon he extended his original schedule a day. The postponement was attributed to failure to reach a decision on the court vacancy.

Early today Mr. Roosevelt attended services at St. James Episcopal church, where he was baptized. After services he returned to his family estate in a driving downpour.

On entering his home he sidestepped comment on the court vacancy. He said he had no news and expected to make none during the day.

From church services he turned to luncheon with Maj. Gen. Frank McCoy, commander of the New York corps area. Others at the luncheon table were Mrs. McCoy, Mrs. Roosevelt and the President's sister-in-law, Mrs. James Roosevelt.

Father Held in Baby Theft Refuses Extradition Waiver

South Bend, Ind., police were notified yesterday that Leonard Lampley, 23 years old, who was arrested here on a charge of abducting his daughter, Patricia Joyce, 2 years old, has refused to waive extradition and declined to tell the whereabouts of the baby. Lampley was divorced by his wife, Dorothy, last month, and is said to have taken the baby from South Bend to Chicago. The ex-wife or South Bend police must get a warant from the governor of Indiana. Then Lampley will be given a hearing here on extradition proceedings.

BURGLAR SLAIN BY POLICEMAN IN APARTMENT

Looter Killed Making Break for Freedom.

Surprised while looting a first floor apartment at 831 Wrightwood avenue yesterday, a burglar was shot and killed when he defied a policeman's command to surrender.

Miss Ida Middleton, 829 Wrightwood avenue, a neighbor, saw the burglar jimmy a rear window and climb into the apartment of Frank Wisman, who had left the day before with his family for a vacation at Lake Geneva, Wis. Miss Middleton called police.

Answering a radio alarm, Policemen Rundin Borge and Frank Thiese of the Sheffield avenue station reached the apartment a few minutes later. Thiese waited at the front door while Borge went to the rear.

Burglar Runs from Bedroom.

Borge found the rear window open and saw that the thief had left the back door open for a getaway. Drawing his revolver, he entered the kitchen. At that moment the burglar heard him and ran out of a bedroom, his pockets bulging with stolen articles.

Borge called for him to halt and surrender. Instead the robber dropped behind a chair, reached toward his hip pocket as if for a gun, then made a break for the front door. The policeman again ordered him to throw up his hands, and when he kept on running, fired one shot, which pierced the robbers' heart. The thief fell dead just inside the front door.

Prints Reveal Identity.

Through finger prints Capt. Thomas Duffy of the Sheffield avenue station identified the dead man as Fred Bremer, 42 years old, of 7722 Patterson avenue, who had a minor police record in 1921 and 1922. The records also showed a grand jury no-bill in a burglary case against him in 1931.

Capt. Duffy praised Policeman Borge and said he would try to get him the $300 extra compensation awarded for heroic service.

DIVER HUNTS GUN USED BY N. Y. POLICEMAN IN SLAYING FRENCH MAID

New York, Aug. 8.—[Special.]—A new instrument of underwater dredging was prepared by police today to gather evidence against Arthur H. Chalmers, a mounted policeman, held on a charge of having murdered Irma Louise Pradier, a French hospital domestic.

Arthur Chalmers.

The instrument is a new electromagnetic diving outfit. With it a diver is expected to find in the Harlem river the .38 caliber revolver with which Miss Pradier was murdered and which Chalmers has confessed he tossed into the water.

Police officials, however, said that regardless of whether they recovered the pistol they had solved the murder of Miss Pradier. As a further link in the proof they were seeking a married woman who was said to have departed with Chalmers on an eight day vacation immediately after the murder.

GYPSY PROMISES TO BANISH GRIEF; ONLY ADDS MORE

The gypsy fortune teller who came to Mrs. Alice Fegan's home at 5651 South Sangamon street said she could charm away Mrs. Fegan's grief over the tragedy that in April left her widowed and her three small children fatherless. The widow must take all her $500 savings from the bank—every dollar of it—and wear it in a stocking around her waist. The gypsy's touch would work the charm.

The ten days the gypsy woman said the charm would require were over yesterday. Mrs. Fegan, who is 31 years old, untied the stocking. The money the gypsy had held as she said her charm was gone. In its place was a roll of brown wrapping paper.

DIES OF INJURIES IN FALL.

Injuries he incurred Aug. 4 when he fell as he attempted to jump on a moving coal truck at 57th street and Hamilton avenue caused the death yesterday of John Salow, 58 years old, 3949 Sheridan road, a coal loader, at the Southtown hospital.

RAPE KILLING OF CHILD CONFESSED BY EX-CONVICT

Arrested After Attempt to Annoy Another.

New York, Aug. 8.—[Special.]—An ex-convict who had served time as a parole violator and on morals charges today confessed the rape-slaying of Paula Magagna, 8 years old, in the basement of her Brooklyn home last Saturday. He is held on a charge of murder.

The prisoner is Lawrence Marks, 49 years old, who has been in jail for larceny, rape, and impairing the morals of a minor. He lived with his wife in a furnished room about two miles from the Magagna home. He had been released from the Great Meadow penitentiary June 13 after serving the parole violation term.

Seeks Early Trial.

District Attorney F. X. Geoghan said he would present the case to the grand jury tomorrow.

Marks was arrested yesterday after his landlady had told police that he had annoyed her daughter three days after the slaying of the Magagna child. Police reported that after he had told seventeen conflicting stories he finally confessed and reënacted the crime.

The Magagna girl, strangled with a clothesline and violated after she was dead, was found in the basement of her tenement home only a little more than an hour after she had gone out to play.

Sees Child on Street.

Prosecutor Frederick Kopff said Marks told him that he first saw the girl when he left a subway train early on the afternoon of July 31 and said to her:

"Little girl, where do you live?"

"Down there," the child said, pointing to her home a block away.

"Do you know where the gas meters are?"

"Yes, sir."

"Will you show them to me?"

"Yes."

The child then led him to the scene of her death.

A man accused by a 13 year old girl of accosting her about two blocks from the scene of the Magagna slaying was arrested tonight after he had been surrounded by a threatening group of residents. He said he is Fred Schultz, 31 years old.

ORGANIZER FOR MINERS KILLED; TWO ARE HELD

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Mystery surrounds the killing of Glenn Stufflebeam, organizer for the Progressive Miners of America, who was shot to death five miles south of this city early today. John H. Schneider, also a Progressive miner, who was riding with Stufflebeam, and R. Kyle Moody are held by authorities, but no charges have been preferred. Assistant State's Attorney John Curran said there is a possibility that warants may be obtained tomorrow.

Schneider said that he and Stufflebeam were en route to Springfield when the shooting occurred. Another car swerved alongside their machine, Schneider said, from which the fatal shot was fired. Stufflebeam was hit by a charge from a sawed-off shotgun and not by a bullet, as at first reported. Schneider gave the police a license number which he said was on the assailant's car, and a checkup showed it belonged to Moody, who was taken into custody. He denied any connection with the shooting.

Police said the shooting might have been caused by a new outbreak of violence between the warring factions in the miners' union.

Husband Loses $76 to Two Bandits; Wife Saves Gem

Two youths were sought last night for the early morning robbery of Sol. C. Lazarus, of the Windermere hotel, 1642 East 56th street, and Mrs. Lazarus. As the Lazarus were returning from a party at the Edgewater Beach hotel, their car was forced to the curb in Cornell avenue near 50th street by the bandit auto. Mrs. Lazarus hid two rings, worth $2,000. The robbers took $76 from Lazarus.

IT'S ALL IN FUN

FESTIVAL TICKET SALES BOUND ON RUBINOFF NEWS

Seats Available for Many More Thousands.

Recalling the last minute rush of other years when music lovers stood in long queues outside the gates of Soldiers' field, thousands of foresighted persons have already purchased their tickets for the seventh annual Chicago Music Festival, Aug. 31, featuring Rubinoff and his violin.

Since the noted violinist's announcement Friday night after his brilliant performance in the Grant Park band shell, that he would play at the festival, the ticket sale took an upward surge. Although the advance sale indicates an attendance of at least 80,000, there are tickets available for many more thousands desiring to avoid the inevitable congestion on festival night.

Three Box Offices Open.

William Sturm, general ticket manager of CHICAGO TRIBUNE CHARITIES, Inc., sponsors of the event, explained yesterday that three box offices are open for the convenience of the public. Two are located in THE TRIBUNE'S public service bureau at 1 South Dearborn streets and the other in the bureau office in the lobby of Tribune Tower.

As an added convenience, said Mr. Sturm, tickets may be purchased by mail, this being of particular service to fathers intending to purchase a block for the whole family. Each ticket costs fifty cents. Checks or money orders should be made payable to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and sent to the festival ticket manager in the Tribune Tower.

Any Seat Is a Good One.

Naturally the early bird plucked the choicest seat, but any pew in the giant open air auditorium is a good one from which to watch the spectacle of harmony and color. Powerful amplifiers have been installed to carry the slightest nuance of a singer to every recess of the stadium.

Only a few plates are still available for the first festival luncheon Friday afternoon, Aug. 20, in the Silver Forest room of the Drake hotel.

Charles Wakefield Cadman, eminent composer, will be the principal speaker. Heading the entertainment program will be Margery Maxwell, star of the opera, concert, stage, and radio. Plates are $1 each, and tickets may be obtained from festival headquarters, room 1418, in Tribune Tower.

FIREMEN FIGHT LUMBER BLAZE FOR TWO HOURS

After a two hour battle, firemen under Deputy Marshal Joseph Mackey yesterday extinguished a blaze in the lumber yard of the Chicago Curtain Stretcher company, 3713 South May street, after two huge piles of lumber had been partly destroyed with a loss of $10,000. A 3-11 alarm was sounded when the flames threatened to spread to the Haggard-Marcusson Bed company, 1109 West 37th street.

TEACHER WILL DENY SHE RULED WITH BALL BAT

Waynesburg, Pa., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Laura Elms Morris, country school teacher charged with having disciplined pupils with a baseball bat and a poker, will defend herself Tuesday at a hearing before the Whitely township school board. Mother of two children and descendant of one of Greene county's pioneer families, she has invoked Pennsylvania's new teacher tenure law in an effort to get her job back.

She was dismissed on charges of cruelty and incompetence. Pupils testified at a public hearing that she struck some of the students with a "baseball bat and a poker."

Mrs. Morris, who is 44 years old, has denied the charges.

HEROIC CIVILIAN STILL CRITICALLY ILL; FEVER DOWN

Despite a two point drop in his temperature, Lige Debowski, the chef who won acclaim for bravery in killing two bandits in a robbery, was termed a very sick man yesterday by Dr. Karl Meyer, medical superintendent of the county hospital. Debowski has been a patient in the hospital for three weeks, receiving treatment for five wounds he incurred in the gun battle. Although his temperature had receded, Debowski was delirious at times yesterday. Dr. Meyer said no additional transfusions or operations appeared necessary.

IN A GLASS HOUSE

By CALEB

DIOGENES—the proverbial searcher of old—has more than a modern counterpart in the modern department store's personnel manager. Diogenes proverbially hurried his weary way about the earth searching for an honest man. The department store is continually searching for people who can live in a glass house. There is a unique aspect to the department store sales person's job.

The factory worker is not seen by the public. The factory worker can have a burst of temperament or moodiness, can be careless about his or her appearance, can have (at least in a great many cases) a sandpaper disposition.

The person who works in an office can likewise have faults which his privacy protects.

But the sales person in a department store works in a glass house. Eight hours a day her very best is expected of her. No personal or family or home reasons are considered justification for the curdling of her disposition. When she accepts her job, it is presumed she puts aside any prerogatives she may formerly have enjoyed in connection with temperament.

All this imposes a grave responsibility on the sales person. It likewise imposes a great responsibility on her employer. There are a great many people in the world who temperamentally are suited for just such work. It is the job of the department store to find those people. There is no place in selling for the individual whose disposition and habits of temperament would be better concealed from the public a certain portion of the time.

The department store lives in a glass house. So does its employe. Where things go wrong in a business which does not contact the public, the public never knows. If anything goes wrong in a business which serves the public directly, it becomes immediately apparent—either in what the business offers or in the service it renders.

People who meet you at our counters or anywhere in our business are expected to be the kind of persons you expect them to be.

PLANE CRASHES OFF CHINA COAST; WARSHIP SAVES 8

Three Missing; American Pilot Injured.

HONGKONG, Aug. 9.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Edward S. Smith, formerly of Los Angeles, Cal., pilot of a Chinese airliner which made a forced landing at sea, yesterday, was taken to a hospital today with internal injuries after he and seven other survivors were brought ashore. The fate of three others was not known.

Heavy arrow indicates Chilang, point near scene of plane wreck; light arrow locates Bias bay, pirates' lair.

The survivors arrived aboard the British destroyer Thracian after being picked up by a Chinese junk, transferred to a customs cruiser and later to the Thracian in heavy seas last night.

The six Chinese passengers, one of whom was injured, and E. M. Walsh, an American aviator employed by the Canton government, told a graphic story of the accident.

Wrecked Near Pirates' Lair.

The airliner, a twin-engined Sikorsky amphibion belonging to the China National Aviation company ran into difficulties off Chilang point, 85 miles northeast of here. The point is near Bias bay, notorious haunt of China coast pirates.

After radioing "we are landing," Smith set the plane down. A wave immediately snapped off one of the wings and as the pilot opened the throttle the plane overturned.

The occupants clung to the remaining wing, many of them calling for help, until it, too, broke off.

Three members of the crew, believed to be George Ohrnberger, Russian co-pilot; N. A. Chen, Chinese wireless operator, and F. H. Chen, Chinese steward, were washed away and believed lost.

The others were supported by the plane's floats until help arrived.

Five Air Line Officials Killed.

LISBON, Portugal, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Five directors of a projected new air line here were killed today when their airplane, the Aguia Branca, caught fire and fell into the sea two miles off the coast between Lisboa and Figueira da Foz. Abel Jessoa, president of the new company, the Air Commerciale, was piloting the plane to Figueira da Foz to attend a regatta. Other victims were Portuguese.

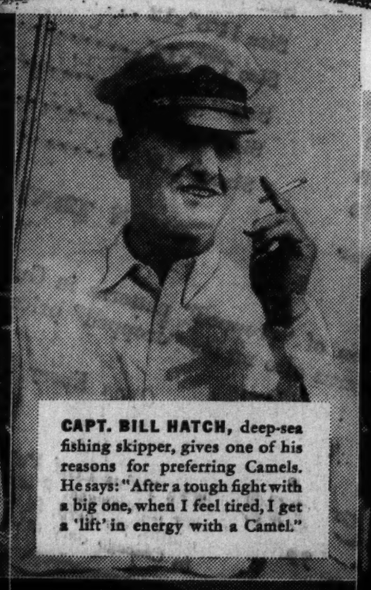
DID YOU SAY Action?

THERE'S PLENTY DOING when Bob Bullock's in the game! Follow him up the field. (He's wearing the dark shirt in these pictures.) Bob is one of the great No. 3's of polo—plays this key position as it should be played—with strategy, skill, and courage!

RIGHT ON THE NOSE! Consistent, accurate hitting makes Bob Bullock a dangerous scoring threat. Above, he rides an opponent out of play—at the same time makes a well-timed shot to the uprights at such blinding speed that even a fast-action camera catches the ball only as an egg-shaped blur!

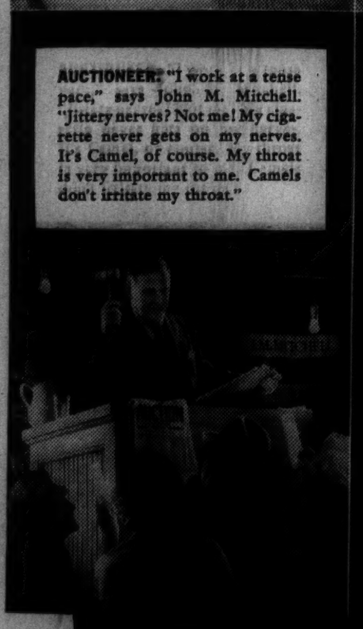
CLOSE QUARTERS! Bullock is famous as a hard-riding defense player too. Above, he's playing to retrieve possession of the ball for his side. Like Lou Gehrig (the Iron Man of Baseball), Lenore Kight Wingard (America's Premiere Speed-Swimmer), and Glenn Hardin (World's Champion Hurdler), Bob Bullock has a decided preference for the extra smoking pleasure that Camels bring him. He's smoked Camels for over a decade.

WATCHING Helen Howard, one of America's most graceful divers, you realize what healthy nerves mean to a diver. Does she smoke? "Of course," Helen says. "I smoke as many Camels as I please. They're so mild!"



CAPT. BILL HATCH, deep-sea fishing skipper, gives one of his reasons for preferring Camels. He says: "After a tough fight with a big one, when I feel tired, I get a 'lift' in energy with a Camel."

AUCTIONEER: "I work at a tense pace," says John M. Mitchell. "Jittery nerves? Not me! My cigarette never gets on my nerves. It's Camel, of course. My throat is very important to me. Camels don't irritate my throat."



NO JANGLED NERVES for this busy secretary. Miss Rosamond Morse says: "I can't afford jangled nerves. That's why I prefer a milder cigarette—Camels. I've smoked Camels for years. They never jangle my nerves."

Naturally Bob Bullock Appreciates Mild Smoking

POLO enthusiasts will agree with Mr. Bullock that it takes healthy nerves to play polo—nerves that don't fail in a pinch. Bob Bullock says: "Camels deserve the blue ribbon for mildness and mellowness. I've smoked Camels for years. They never jangle my nerves!"

Mealtime (right) finds Bob, as usual, enjoying Camels—for digestion's sake. "Camels at mealtimes and afterwards add a world of enjoyment to eating," he says. "'I'd walk a mile for a Camel!'"

FRENCH WOMEN OF STREETS ASK OLD AGE PENSION

Form Union to Guard Their Rights.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 8.—A new and tragicomic light was thrown on prostitution in France today with the announcement of the formation of a labor union called the "Friendly Association for Employes of Social Houses and Professionals."

The headquarters is, appropriately, on the Rue du Faubourg-St. Martin, which is in a quarter surrounding one of the medieval gates of Paris. It is old and dilapidated, and abandoned, to a considerable extent, to vice.

The euphemism "social houses" refers to what the French call "houses of illusion," but the union also takes in waiters, maids, cashiers, managers, and so forth. The term "professional" lets in street walkers.

Guards Against Unemployment.

The printed announcement issued by the new union in the drive to organize a hitherto untouched profession stated that it aims thus "to create and develop among the personnel feelings of fraternity, solidarity, and moral support to defend their interests, especially in cases of unemployment or sickness, and to seek legal means for insuring them in old age, either through existing laws or through private foresight."

The new union has been registered with the police according to law, and has been listed officially among legally constituted associations.

It was suspected that the money behind it may be, at least in part, the funds reported to have been collected by operators of houses of prostitution months ago to fight former Premier Leon Blum's proposal to make prostitution illegal, a move which has not been repudiated by the present premier, Camille Chautemps.

12,000 Houses in France.

No figures were given regarding the number of girls involved, but they may be estimated from the 6,000 registered in Paris in 1,600 houses. The number of houses of prostitution in France is estimated at 12,000.

Besides the registered girls in Paris there are at least 20,000 who are not registered—one prefect of police estimated 60,000—and the total number in France may be estimated from these Paris figures.

When the Socialist and communist labor federations fused there was a joke to the effect that "now everybody is in a union except the street walkers." It is no longer a joke.

UNION RATIFIES TRUCE; CHRYSLER PLANT TO REOPEN

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 8.—(AP)—United Automobile Workers' union members today ratified a truce between the union and the Chrysler corporation, paving the way for reopening of the Plymouth plant tomorrow.

Local No. 51, in a massmeeting attended by 2,000 members, gave formal approval to the agreement reached last night in a meeting of U. A. W. A. officials and Chrysler representatives.

Reopening of the plant "for full operation of all shifts," as announced previously by the company, will send back to work approximately 20,000 employes, idle since a clash last Wednesday between the U. A. W. A. and the independent association of Chrysler employes.

Farmer Beaten Because Threshers Get Cold Food

Dubuque, Ia., Aug. 8.—(AP)—According to Sherif T. J. Ryder, Joseph Siefker, 52 year old farmer, was beaten by two neighbors who helped him thresh because Siefker "served them cold potatoes." Siefker is in a hospital here. The sherif said Mrs. Pauline Drewke, cook at the farm, who described the beating, told him the men were late for dinner and that the potatoes had been "warmed over."

N. CAROLINA PRISONER CONFESSES SLAYING OF GIRL IN KANSAS CITY

Andrews, N. C., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—T. O. Sleyton, superintendent of the state prison camp here, said tonight a prisoner had confessed to the slaying of Miss Florence Barton, daughter of a shoe company president, in Kansas City on Oct. 2, 1920.

Sleyton said the prisoner, Clyde Cummings, serving a nine month sentence for attempted extortion, told him he killed Miss Barton for $200 paid him by another man.

"He gave me the other person's name," Sleyton said, "but I can't release it. I believe there's something to his story, though."

Police Discount Confession.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Kansas City police were inclined to doubt the story told by Clyde Cummings, prisoner in the state prison camp at Andrews, N. C., that he killed a Kansas City girl. T. J. Higgins, chief of detectives, telegraphed for full information.

"The meager details we have about the confession," Higgins said, "do not check with the facts in the murder of Miss Florence Barton. It is possible Cummings is known here, but we have no one of that name in the police gallery."

Miss Barton, a sister of Mrs. Paul Griffiths of Evanston, Ill., was shot in a motor car driven by Howard R. Winter, her fiancé. Denzel Chester was acquitted of the murder charge. He now is serving a sentence in San Quentin, Cal., prison for robbery.

YOUNG ROBBERY GANG CAPTURED; HIDEOUT FOUND

Ten youths said by police to have specialized in robberies on the north side, and with a vacant building at Beach avenue and Wood street as their hideout, were in custody yesterday charged with numerous holdups.

They were arrested by Detectives James Lynch, Arthur Boysen, and Frank Mundt of the Shakespeare avenue station. All the prisoners had closely cropped hair which they had expected would make identification difficult if they ever faced any of their victims.

The prisoners are Edward Lois, 19 years old, 1750 Wabansia avenue; Stanley Kleba, 27, 6335 Roscoe street; Stanley Kawa, 26, of 2227 North Damen avenue; Robert Thulke, 18, who lived in the gang headquarters; Eugene Nenist, 20, of 1756 Wabansia avenue; Joseph Rogalski, 22, recently of San Antonio, Tex.; Stephen Lamack, 18, of 1540 North Paulina street; August Ropel, 18, of 1410 Altgeld street; Lawrence Starke, 19, of 1865 Leavitt street, and Harry Poysen, 19, of 2432 Augusta boulevard.

Sever Siamese Twins, Kin of Pair in Barnum Circus

Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 8.—(AP)—A delicate and rare operation, severing a normal Siamese twin from her undeveloped sister, was performed at St. Mary's hospital, it was learned today. The baby's great-great-grandfather was one of the original Siamese twins who exhibited in this country with P. T. Barnum. Doctors said the baby, a healthy, 7 month old girl, was recuperating satisfactorily.

REVIEWS TROOPS OF STATE GUARD AT CAMP GRANT

Camp Grant, Ill., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Gov. Henry Horner, as commander in chief, today reviewed the 7,000 officers and men of the Illinois National Guard encamped here at the annual observance of Governor's day. A heavy rain early this morning threatened for a time to prevent the review, but the sun came out brightly this afternoon.

The governor saw an impressive and colorful parade of the 33d division staf, followed by the state's two infantry brigades composed of five regiments, the division, special troops, the 106th cavalry, the quartermaster regiment, the tank company and last, a demonstration by the planes of the 108th observation squadron of Illinois, joined for the occasion by the 107th observation squadron of the Michigan National Guard.

After the review the governor addressed the massed division in Garrity's woods, and presented Illinois distinguished service medals to two officers cited for their distinguished service during the floods of last winter in the southern part of the state. They are Lieut. Col. Robert W. Davis of Carbondale, commanding the 130th infantry, and Capt. Wilson V. Newhall of Chicago, veteran pilot of the aviation squadron.

Following the presentation the governor paid high tribute to officers and men of the guard for their appearance, training, efficiency and patriotism.

In the afternoon and evening the governor and guests and a crowd of more than 40,000 camp visitors watched a horse show and polo game between teams of the 124th field artillery from Chicago and the 106th cavalry.

In the evening the huge crowd was swelled by more thousands who came to camp to see the championship boxing bouts.

GET OUT YOUR PENCIL AND FIGURE

Illinois, as was noted in the public prints, has run into some difficulties with the federal auditors of the Social Security board. The Illinois records, it was made to appear, are being kept by individuals more familiar with poll lists than with departmental accounting. That difficulty will probably get straightened out when the state government finds it necessary to employ persons whose work can pass burocratic scrutiny.

When Mr. Hoover was President there was a great and growing outcry against what was called the federal octopus, meaning the expanding federal burocracy needed to administer what even the conservative Mr. Hoover thought to be within the federal imperative. Recent years have thrown more light upon the situation and we know now that it was no octopus; it was only a minnow.

In a recent debate over the proposed White House council of six new executive assistants, Representative Thurston of Iowa was asked if he knew how many new bureaus had been created in the last four years. Mr. Thurston replied that he didn't have accurate figures but possibly half of the existing 120 boards, bureaus, commissions, and authorities had been created within that period. Half, the bright kindergarten child would tell you, is 60. Mr. Knutson of Minnesota, who made the inquiry, said that according to his information the new authorities numbered 104. Evidently even the congressmen don't know what they have set up.

All these governmental institutions, playing with nearly every activity in the country, require accounting, and we are led to believe that we have only gone half the way toward the ideal of central administration. In this connection it may be interesting to refer to an article by Prof. Paul Haensel, who is now on the faculty of Northwestern university. He is a man of wide acquaintance with burocracy, as may be seen by his record.

Prior to the Russian revolution he was a member of the board of the Imperial bank. Under the soviet government he was president of the financial section of the Institute of Economic Research. He participated in the formulation of the five year plan and he was associated with the University of Moscow from 1903 to 1928, when he left Russia to lecture and teach in schools of economics.

Dr. Haensel in his article describes one item in the bookkeeping of the soviets. He says:

"In 1934 village soviets were required to report periodically in regard to 1,165 items, and the region or county soviets in regard to 11,595 items." The county soviets must yearly "submit reports on 154 articles relating to the pedigree activity" of all the live stock. Each village soviet is required to keep 61 different kinds of books and each collective farm 37 kinds of books and 19 different accounts. Each collective farm must report periodically to the region or village administration in regard to 1,362 items.

Many inexperienced American citizens already have been befuddled by the requirements of government, but if you will look again at the above figures you will see that the happy days are yet to come.

ON SHOUTING SOFTLY.

If Edward Barry, who covered one of the excellent Ravinia Festival concerts in the north shore grove of harmony, will come under the editorial wing immediately that wing will endeavor to protect him from what may be coming to him. Mr. Barry in describing the art of Fritz Reiner, the conductor of the evening, said he is a rugged, businesslike man whose gestures are powerful and often violent. "Occasionally he emphasizes a point by shouting softly at the orchestra."

The editorial wing does not assume that Mr. Barry cannot stand out in the open and either dodge them, sidestep them, or answer back "shouting softly," but frequently a defense can be made with graver philosophy by a disinterested agency, such as a corporation lawyer defending his firm's tax schedule.

It is the opinion in this department that Mr. Barry employed a fine and delicate nuance in reporting that Mr. Reiner shouted softly. By shouting he conveyed what the conductor wanted to do. The shout was within his intentions. He modified his intentions to the decorum and proprieties of the occasion and therefore it was a soft shout. Nevertheless, in all its meaning, it was a shout. If Mr. Reiner had been Gabby Hartnett protesting against a called strike it would have been a loud shout and properly could have been. The ball park was the place for it. It might have been so loud as to put Mr. Hartnett in the doghouse for the rest of the game.

If we confined a writer to the rigidity of expression which would compel him to say whispering softly to the orchestra, nothing of Mr. Reiner's mood would have been indicated. His mood required a series of whoops and his circumstances reduced them to whispers, but what an injustice would have been done the conductor's intent if Mr. Barry had said whispering softly. The phrase would have protected the reviewer from the mistake hound who looks at life as a series of bonehead plays on the part of somebody else and wants to exploit himself in exploiting them.

The license of using such double meaning phrases of seemingly contradictory words could be extended to even such as: "The auditors clapped their hands sibilantly." But not at Ravinia. The shouts from the audience are rapturous.

THE SMALL COLLEGE.

Philip Kinsley is doing the readers of THE TRIBUNE a service by rediscovering, in a sense, the small colleges which have exerted and continue to exert such a potent influence in molding the people of the middle west.

When we say rediscover, we refer particularly to those whose collegiate horizon is largely limited by the fall sports pages to the Big Ten, the Big Six, the Pacific Coast conference, and what jokingly is called the Big Three. To the alumni of the small colleges and others aware of their contributions to American life, those institutions need no rediscovery.

It is noticeable that the small colleges as a group are far older than the state and private universities which today overshadow them in student registration and athletic prestige. Illinois college, for instance, was 42 years old when its present huge neighbor, the University of Illinois, graduated its first class.

That the colleges have not enjoyed a mushroom growth is no indication that they have lagged in a race for survival of the fittest. Rather, their lack of large public appropriations, and their concomitant freedom from the demand that they offer any course which some minority of taxpayers or their children think comes under the heading of education, has enabled them to conform more closely than most big universities to the plan on which they were founded.

And that plan was on the whole a very good one. Its purpose was rather to fit the student for life than to fit him to earn a living. If our fellow townsman, President Hutchins, has his way, the universities, too, will return to that path.

Mr. Kinsley has made it clear that in this process of fitting the student for life, religion plays an important part. The compulsory chapel and 6 o'clock prayers of earlier days may have disappeared, but the colleges are still Christian institutions. Therein lies one of their advantages over the state universities. As long as we remain a Christian nation it is well that the churches should have their voice in training students for life, each denomination according to its own tenets of faith.

On the whole, in the field of general education to which most of the small colleges confine themselves, the size of an institution probably has little to do with its level of instruction. This is particularly true if account is taken of the fact that in the university the more brilliant faculty minds too often have little contact with the undergraduate student.

Perhaps the greatest advantage which the small college enjoys, however, it enjoys by reason of its size. It is a workable social unit. The high school graduate of 18, entering a large university, is too often a unit lost in a largely amorphous student mass. Unless he possesses unusual force of personality he does not influence the crowd, and the influence of the crowd on him is too likely to produce mass production graduates with nothing but mass production ideas. In a small college student body his chance of shaking himself loose from the mass increases in geometrical rather than arithmetical ratio. He has a better chance to evaluate his instructors before he enters their courses, and to know them while he studies under them. In a relatively small body of students his acquaintance with a wide variety of his fellow humans is likely to be wider than where pressure of numbers confines his contacts, too often, to a single clique.

In sum, the small college student has a greater opportunity of becoming an individualist. Until recently such development was considered a distinct benefit to both the individual and society. Even under the new dispensation at Washington the quality may have unsuspected merits. If collectivism ever works, it will probably be rugged individualists who keep its wheels turning.

THE HUSH THAT FELL O'ER EDEN.

Powers interested in the treaty rights guarding the Peiping-Tientsin right of way, agreed to after the Boxer revolution for the protection of foreigners in China, have warned Japan that its present military operations in this region violate the pledges and are intolerable.

The Boxer treaties were intended to make China a safe place for aliens, the Japanese included. The treaties were based on realities. After the world war the treaty makers began to build on hopes. They proscribed war as an instrument of national policy. They stopped or tried to stop competitive armament. They set up the league of nations and the world court. They subscribed to the Kellogg peace pact. They agreed with each other against aggression. Nine nations guaranteed the integrity of China.

Our former secretary of state, Mr. Stimson, gave the nine power agreement a workout when Manchuria was ravished and soon found himself so far from second base that he had to climb the right field wall and get back home through the alleys. The Hon. Anthony Eden tried the league of nations to save Ethiopia, and although every one said a great deal no one except Mussolini did anything, and that did not save Ethiopia.

Mandates were supposed to be returned to the league of nations when a member nation having them resigned. Japan took its hat but kept its mandates. Since Japan signed the nine power treaty Japanese aggression against China has been almost without interruption and wholly without interference. One writer estimates that China has lost to Japan about one-fifth of national territory, 41 per cent of the railway mileage, 85 per cent of the unsettled land, 80 per cent of iron deposits, 37 per cent of forest land and 40 per cent of the national export trade.

When Mr. Eden, probably the greatest pactist now operating in a diplomatic post, was asked if he intended to appeal either to the league of nations or rely upon the nine power treaty, he said no.

FOUND OUT.

"He drove straight to his goal. He looked neither to the right nor to left, but pressed forward, moved by a definite purpose. Neither friend nor foe could delay him nor turn him from his course. All who crossed his path did so at their own peril. What would you call such a man?"

Note on a Historical Character.

One day, about the turn of the century, while I was cutting street curbing in Mile End road, Whitechapel, a talkative blimey told me General Booth on that very spot had preached the sermon from which grew the Salvation Army. He told me of the hostile reception given the great crusader by the young bloods. Had I listened, I might have had more details, but I was on piecework and had to get along with it. . . . A few days later I was sent to Three Colts lane, Bethnal Green, to repair a sidewalk, and as I chiseled another bloke informed me it was right here Jack the Ripper had committed his nineteenth murder. I was much more interested in the carryings on of this character than in the maiden efforts of General Booth and I lent both ears to the cockney. Jack, I learned, was no cheap cut-throat, but a first class workman and a credit to his profession. Respecting territorial rights, he confined himself to London's East End. When he had murdered thirty he had his quota and quit. All his victims had red hair, and all were ladies of the primrose path. He was never caught and, so far as I know, Scotland Yard is still looking for him. Thomas K. Davey.

LURKING GERMS.

As a boy I remember certain characters about town who in a way were philosophers and who fascinated all of us lads. They had "been places and seen things." One in particular was a former stage coach driver on the western plains and he never lacked an audience. The tales of his experiences with Indians, highwaymen, and blizzards were more captivating than the most lurid Biddle dime novel.

He was an inveterate chewer of "fine cut," and we could not help observing the gnarled, jagged stumps—once probably good teeth—which filled his mouth. I realize now that his arthritis and general debility no doubt resulted from an oral infection of long standing.

A little less than a generation ago the theory was advanced that the teeth could drain pus into the circulation and as a result damage the general health. At first this idea was ridiculed. How could a tiny abscess no larger than the head of a pin be responsible for heart disease, for rheumatism or some of its manifestations? But more study and investigation taught us that from pockets of bacteria, constantly reproducing their kind, organisms may be carried to other parts of the body by the blood stream. Thus they are able to reach joints, muscles, nerves, and vital organs such as the kidneys, gall bladder, appendix, and even the eyes and ears.

It is unfortunate that the appearance of a tooth may give no indication whatsoever of trouble. It may look healthy, but when an X-ray picture is taken we may find that the structure is dead or that an infection has destroyed a portion of the bone. Occasionally the old fashioned method of filling a root canal has left a bit of infection at the very end. Here germs may lie dormant if the individual is in tiptop health, but let him fall below par and we may observe the infection gaining ground alarmingly.

Few of us welcome the decision that a clean looking tooth should come out, but if it is definitly diseased the part of wisdom is to follow the advice. If several are involved the dentist will usually proceed with great caution. There is always a possibility that the opening of a pocket of pus, which follows an extraction, may bring about enough absorption to cause a severe illness. As a precaution, one removal a week may be rapid enough. Again, few dentists are willing to scrape out the socket; this only stirs up infection and multiplies the danger a thousandfold.

Curiously enough, about 75 per cent of our foci of infection occur in the throat, mouth, teeth, and sinuses. These latter spaces can become diseased and produce great quantities of foul pus. An old middle ear infection from which a discharge appears only occasionally is a menace as long as it exists. We fail to realize that the living body may be called upon to use up much of its energy in neutralizing toxins and destroying microbes.

Perhaps you may say: "I know people who are perfectly well, although they have had sinus trouble for years. They discharge a great amount of mucus from the nose and throat, but it never seems to affect them." Yes, but it does. They may be possessed of an overplus of energy and vitality that holds the flames in check for a time. With a slight drop in resistance, however, the spread of the conflagration may be rapid. Furthermore, the general appearance is not a positive criterion of good health. Minor assaults constantly repeated—upon the kidneys, for example—may undermine a stalwart constitution rather quickly. The gradual crumbling of foundation stones will in time bring down the entire structure.

Modern dentistry can do so much to preserve good health that every one should take advantage of the opportunities immediately at hand. My old stage driver friend succumbed to pneumonia the third day of his illness. He was so riddled with disease that there was no fight left in his enfeebled organs and tissues. When I first knew him it was probably too late to have given him much relief, even though his decayed stumps had been removed. But no one was insisting at that time that all bacteria found growing in the body should be discharged without ceremony.

We live and learn. Today hundreds of thousands owe the preservation of health to our better understanding of the deadly rôle of pocketed germs.

LOWERED RESISTANCE.

A. B. A. writes:

1. If a person suffers from chronic diarrhea over a period of years without its being checked, what may result?
2. Is there any danger of intestinal tuberculosis or cancer?
3. Which foods are of value in such trouble, and which are to be avoided?
4. I have been informed that Texas and Arizona climate is best for sinus sufferers. What do you advise?

REPLY.

1. Lowered resistance and some chronic disease of the digestive tract.
2. Tuberculosis of the bowel usually follows pulmonary [lung] tuberculosis. The diarrhea can cause neither disease, but may result from either.
3. The cause must be identified first. Sometimes the symptom persists because hydrochloric acid is absent from the gastric juice. Entamoeba must be considered. Diet cannot be advised without more information.
4. Sinus infection will be found wherever you go. A change of climate is beneficial in many cases. A dry, sunny, clear [dustless] atmosphere is best.

NASAL DISCHARGE.

Miss S. C. writes: I have always had an excessive nasal discharge. As a result, I have a very bad breath. My tonsils and adenoids were removed several years ago. I gargle, but the effect is only temporary. Could you advise a nose wash or something to relieve this embarrassing condition?

REPLY.

Irrigate the air passages of the nose with normal salt solution. Using a soft rubber ear syringe and with the head bent slightly forward, introduce the fluid [warm] under low pressure. A weak solution of sodium bicarbonate may be useful also—1 teaspoonful to a pint of boiled water.

A dilute solution of some chlorine antiseptic will destroy the odor. Make certain that the tongue and teeth are clean.

CRACKING JOINTS.

Mrs. J. A. writes:

My daughter is 14 years old. When she walks the joints at her hips pop and snap. The sound can be heard all over the room. It has been this way since winter, and is getting worse. There is no pain, but it is annoying. What do you advise?

REPLY.

Cracking joints are of frequent occurrence, and usually have no special significance. They are caused by the lack of sufficient lubricating fluid. Heat in the form of hot packs may be helpful.

In older persons it is generally a sign of beginning arthritis.

3. If you know the approximate cost of such a copy, that information will also be appreciated. R. M. W.

UNPROBATED ESTATES.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—An estate was not probated because the building and loan advised us that after five years the property would automatically fall into heirs' hands. Since there was no will, we waited. The five years are up soon.

Now they tell us [1] we have to wait seven years. We would like to sell and, of course, no one will buy without a clear title.

2. Is there some way out of this without waiting a year for probating the same?
3. Would the price of probating be high? All papers were gone over thoroughly four years ago for a new mortgage was drawn up. The property is worth about $4,500. J. D.

1. Seven years is the generally accepted period for barring claims against unprobated estates.
2. Conceivably you might satisfy a purchaser by furnishing a bond against claims. We suggest that you employ an attorney.
3. Depends on the attorney whom you employ and on what you mean by high.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN.—Modern Irish writers are having a bad time in their own country because so many of them, when they attain to any eminence or distinction, go off in a direction which is not consonant with the principles of the Roman Catholic church, which is the church of ninety per cent of the Free State people.

"There are no genuine writers in Ireland now," said Canon Boylan, a leading churchman and member of the government board of censors.

Frank O'Connor, a leading novelist, was scheduled to deliver a radio address from the Dublin-Athlone station, but it was canceled a few hours before the time fixed when it was found that he had selected D. H. Lawrence and James Joyce as the subject of his speech on "Great Writers of Today."

The latest work of Kate O'Brien, the Limerick novelist, who achieved much success with her "Without My Cloak," was blamed by the censors apparently because of its discussion of sex matters.

Irish Free State censorship has been in operation since 1929. During that period several hundreds of publications have come under its ban. The two main points which incur censorship are that publications are in general tendency indecent or that they advocate birth control.

Doubt is expressed in many quarters whether the amount of good done in this way is not counterbalanced in other respects. For one thing, the very fact of a book being suppressed here is regarded as an excellent advertisment for it in Great Britain and Northern Ireland. It is a common practice for persons who desire this sort of reading to go to Belfast and smuggle the book across the border.

Canon Boylan says that "practically no Irish writers of the present, using English as their medium, have tried to depict the concrete Irishman as he lives and strives and as he is upborne by his faith. It might be expected that a country so deeply and genuinely Catholic as Ireland would have long since developed a powerful and attractive literature of its own, revealing the traditional Irish point of view and analyzing Irish life and folk as they are. In fact, however, the type of literary production which is regarded abroad as typical of Ireland is the minute analysis of a purely imaginary subconsciousness constructed on Freudian lines.

"Another type of literary production regarded as typical of modern Ireland is a type which, beginning in the Gaelic twilight period of the close of last century, seems to be under a sort of pagan spell. The Irish men and women it brings before us are almost as devitalized as robots. Superstition instead of faith is dominant in their lives, and their speech, however Gaelic in type it may be, gives little suggestion that they know anything about the Catholic faith. Still another Irish literary school of our day is frankly materialistic. Thoughtful people are inclined to see its effects in the increase in moral disorders and in the almost universal desire for amusement and excitement.

It is an undoubted fact that a chasm wide and deep has been dug between a certain section of the intelligentia and the church because of the vigor of the latter's denunciation of the modern tendency toward free discussion of sex problems and other matters. The same applies to the cinema, which is subjected to a rigorous examination and all suggestions of a sexual tendency are ruthlessly eliminated.

JUSTICE VAN DEVANTER'S STATUS.

Old Bennington, Vt., Aug. 4.—The constitutional question raised by Senator Borah in challenging the right of the President to appoint a new Supreme court justice at this time is of the highest order of importance. Nothing would seem to be clearer than the fact that Justice Van Devanter is still a justice of the Supreme court. That being the case, there is no present vacancy on the bench to be filled. In the circumstances any new appointment to the bench would not be an appointment to fill a vacancy, since no vacancy exists. It would be the appointment of an additional justice, enlarging the court to ten. That would seem to be authorized indirectly, by implication, under the terms of the recently enacted retirement act.

A distinction was drawn between "retirement" and "resignation" in the President's plan and in the act of congress under the provisions of which Justice Van Devanter retired. It was the very essence of the President's plan, as it is of the hastily enacted law embodying that feature of the plan, that retirement does not involve resignation and relinquishment of membership in the court. Should Justice Van Devanter decide that a case pending before the court involved such grave issues as to warant his emerging from the restricted sphere of his "retirement," and to take his place upon the bench of the Supreme court in order to participate in the determination of the issue he could not be prevented from so doing by any lawful method.

Like all statesmen who attempt to circumvent constitutional limitations by trickery and sharp practices, the President has created a muddle. One justice has retired from certain activities upon a pension. He remains, however, a member of the Supreme court under our constitutional provisions. So long as he lives he cannot be replaced unless he resigns or is impeached. Mr. Roosevelt can appoint a new justice of the Supreme court, subject to confirmation, but only as an addition to the present nine members, not in place of one of them.

What Senator Borah is defending is not a mere technicality of trifling significance, but a matter of vital importance involving the integrity of our constitutional system. JOHN SPARGO.

IN WHAT EDITORIAL?

Chicago, Aug. 5.—On the one hand you decry the tendencies to dictatorship displayed by President Roosevelt and on the other you praise, editorially, Francisco Franco. How often do you change your point of view?

By the way, your trusted servant, Darrah, has never reported uprisings in Granada, Cordoba, Malaga, Ceuta, and other rebel cities, put down with characteristic vigor and brutality by rebel Franco. Neither has he seen fit to report the excellent crop and peaceful pursuits of the men and women of loyalist Spain. Why do you not send him there? M. H. K.

HIGH TIDE.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—"When the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder's in the shock, etc." may be a good time to live, but for me, give me the season when the corn is tasseling out and the ears are in the blister. When the melons are ripening on the vine. When the cucumbers are cool and crisp and the peaches and berries coming along, with the small ones on the bottom. C. AMRINE.

NOTES ON THE YARDSTICK.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—In the Saturday Evening Post of Aug. 7 Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of TVA, gives a glowing forecast of the blessings to follow the completion of the work. Dr. Morgan is a competent engineer and there need be no fear that the mechanical details will be defective, but honest doubt may be felt as to the value of the plan.

The aim of the article evidently is to bolster the charging of $330,000,000 to navigation and flood control out of an estimated total cost of $500,000,000, thereby getting the desired yardstick for measuring the cost of electrical production.

Even in these inflationary days $330,000,000 is a lot of money. To justify it he envisions a trafic of 5,000,000 tons on the river with a saving of $1.20 a ton, based on the estimates of the TVA "transportation specialists." We have had other costly river projects based on unsound estimates by other government specialists. A study of the sources and flow of worthwhile trafic which might move on the river indicates that the forecast is optimistic, to put it mildly.

Regarding flood control he says that without the dams Chattanooga might suffer a flood loss of $100,000,000 in a single day. The government is under no obligation to spend money for the protection of property below the high water levels of the distant past; at Chattanooga the record stage of 58.6 feet was reached in 1867. It would be interesting to know how much of the property to be damaged by Dr. Morgan's hypothetical flood lies below that level.

In 1930 the chief of engineers reported that the flood of 1926 caused a loss of $2,650,000 at Chattanooga with a crest of 38.4 feet and estimated the average annual loss on the entire river at $1,780,000. FRANK M. PATTERSON.

STEAK AT 28 CENTS.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Your leading editorial today on prices of steaks, etc., is, as usual, very misleading and misrepresenting. The latest information compiled by reliable sources, and not by the government, which also is reliable, makes the cost of living, taking all things into consideration, 8 per cent lower than the last ten years average. Only yesterday, the day on which the editorial was written, I bought for 42 cents two small T-bone steaks, first grade meat, and weighing a full 1½ pounds. They were very tasty and juicy, and I know my meat, having been connected with the packing industry for many years. CHARLES F. DAVIS.

BOULEVARD NAMES.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—About the 12th street controversy: I suggest that it be named "President Franklin Delano Roosevelt No. 1 boulevard," that Lincoln avenue be named "President Franklin Delano Roosevelt No. 2 boulevard," and Washington street be named "President Franklin Delano Roosevelt No. 3 boulevard." Monroe, Jackson, Van Buren, Adams, could provide boulevards 4, 5, 6, and 7. A. W. S.

WEEDS ON THE OUTER DRIVE.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—We read of weeds being cut all over the district as a sanitary measure and to lessen the misery of hay fever sufferers. I am wondering why the Chicago park board is saving the large crop of ragweed, thistle, and many other kinds on both sides of the outer drive between 31st and 39th streets. A SNEEZER.

MONMOUTH PUTS MUCH EMPHASIS UPON RELIGION

High Scholarship Is Required for Degree.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Monmouth, Ill., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Dr. James Harper Grier, Monmouth Presbyterian minister and former professor of Old Testament languages and literature at Pittsburgh Theological seminary, will be inaugurated fifth president of Monmouth college next October, with a newly organized educational program to administer.

Founded in 1856 as the result of the dream of two pioneer preachers, sheltered under the wings of the United Presbyterian church, built into a three million dollar institution with a wide drawing power in the middle west, Monmouth has reorganized its curriculum after 80 years in conformity with most modern methods, and enters its new era with the conviction that it offers what is needed most in American life today, a strong cultural background united with a sound religious faith.

Religion Is Important.

"The good liberal arts college," the Monmouth administration states, "will not leave out of account religion and spiritual values. A great majority of the colleges of America were founded as church colleges and it has been the religious value which always has held to the college many of its most valuable friends and supporters. The denominational college or the independent college is free to hold aloft religious ideals in a way impossible to the tax supported institution. A campus atmosphere which encourages strong character, lofty ideals and sound religious faith always must be one of the most valuable assets of a worthy college."

The statement of the new curriculum and its objectives, prepared by a faculty committee, follows:

"Monmouth college has as its purpose to provide young men and women with an understanding of the world in which they live, in all of its most general aspects; to provide them with an intelligent understanding and comprehension of the basic structure of the world of physical nature, the world of living organisms from the lowest to the highest forms, the world of human society and institutions, the world of ideas including the products both of imagination and of conceptual thinking, and the world of values."

High Grades Required.

It proceeds from this in the last two years to the requirement of a field of concentration and a mature understanding of some one field of study, and intensive training and skill in the use of one or more of the tools of the intellect. A final comprehensive examination is required. This is in line with the tendency in most colleges of high rating today. It is not sufficient to get passing grades or marks, or to remember dates. One must really know something well before a degree is granted.

Definite pre-professional training has been organized for the last two years leading to business, engineering, industrial biology and chemistry, journalism, law, music, public service and other lines.

A special honors program has been arranged to meet the special needs of the superior student. He is given the opportunity to advance as rapidly as possible and to extend the range and depth of his study far beyond the average. His relation to members of the faculty in his field of special study is a personal one.

Enter 28 Fields.

The record of the last ten graduating classes at Monmouth shows that 7 per cent entered graduate and professional schools, many of them aided by fellowships and scholarships. They entered 28 different fields of study.

The chemistry department has an exceptional record. The words of Prof. Frederick Soddy are given as guidance to this department:

"We find ourselves, in consequence of the progress of physical science, at the pinnacle of one ascent of civilization, taking the first step upward but on to the lowest plane of the next."

The alumni record since 1922 in chemistry classes shows a high percentage of scholarships, fellowships, high school and industrial positions, doctor of philosophy, medical and other degrees.

Music Course Emphasized.

Special emphasis is also given to the school of music and the appreciation of art. The school of music is a department of the college. It is taking an active part in the renaissance of choral music that has come in many colleges since 1920.

The central building on the campus at the edge of town is named after Dr. David A. Wallace, for 22 years president of the college. He was a brother of Henry Wallace, founder of Wallace's Farmer and grandfather of the present secretary of agriculture. The Rev. J. B. McMichael led the college for 19 years and his son, Dr. Thomas H. McMichael, served for 33 years, retiring in 1935.

Gift of Harding's Father.

The land for the college campus, 60 acres, was given by Gen. Abner C. Harding of civil war fame, whose bust and picture are in the library. He was a railroad builder and father of George H. Harding, Republican national committeeman. The late James A. Patton's picture hangs in the president's office as one of the great benefactors of the college. Among the noted alumni are Theodore P. Shontz and John F. Wallace, engineers and Panama canal builders.

About one-sixth of the 597 students at Monmouth are sons and daughters of former students and one-third are from out of the state.

"An atmosphere that is friendly, democratic, inspiring and favorable to the development of Christian ideals" is the aim of the faculty. Chapel is held every day and five semester hours of religious training is a requirement.

Beats Genius Rating

BARBARA SHERLEY.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 8.—Prof. Glenn M. Blair, University of Washington psychologist, today credited chubby 5 year old Barbara Sherley, daughter of a textbook salesman, with an intelligence quotient of 170, or 30 points higher than the minimum rating for a genius.

Prof. Blair said Barbara had a mental age of almost 9 years. H. H. Sherley, the father, took Barbara to Prof. Blair to find out whether she was smart enough to enter the first grade this fall.

"She would be bored with first grade work," said Blair.

AIRY MINUETS PUT HIPPETY-HOP IN DANCE LIMBO

The return of the gavotte and the minuet to the ballroom floor was predicted yesterday by members of the Chicago Association of Dancing Masters, who open their twenty-fourth annual normal school and convention today at the Hotel Sherman.

Hippety-hops and wild Willie dances, requiring the legs of a jack rabbit and the endurance of a steer, definitly are on the wane, they said, and the waltz is coming back.

"Old dyed in the wool dancers are coming back to the dance floor," Willard A. Grubbs of Toledo, O., said. "They had to get off the floors because the tempo was so fast and steps, to comply with the tempo, had been varied so greatly that it was just one wild kick after another."

"Why The New York Times is the Number 1 Newspaper on our Advertising Schedules"

386 FOURTH AVENUE NEW YORK CITY
ADVERTISING

June 23, 1937

The New York Times
New York City

Gentlemen:

There is only one reason for our consistent choice of The New York Times, and it can be summed up in just one word--sales.

By sales I do not mean possible sales or estimated sales I mean actual, traceable, dollars-and-cents sales that we know were made directly from the advertising.

Many of our 40-odd clients are companies largely dependent on sales made directly to the reader. The advertising of these companies must produce a direct return in dollars and cents that not only pays for the cost of the advertising space and the cost of the merchandise and the cost of handling and shipping it, but it must also produce a net profit as well. That, indeed, is an acid test for any newspaper.

I do not know just what it is about The Times that makes its readers respond so readily to advertising. But the record of the results themselves are more important to the advertiser than any theoretical reasons behind them.

Even advertisements only two inches in size have been made to pay, and pay consistently. I can recall one such advertisement inserted for a jewelry house that produced 613 inquiries. Again, we inserted a five-inch, single-column advertisement costing only $98, in which we offered etchings by a group of well-known artists. Total sales to date for this single advertisement are $1540.00. And that particular issue of the Sunday Times had more than 100 pages!

It is not only that your readers see our clients' advertising. In The Times there is a definite relation between seeing and believing, as well. Your policy of presenting news with frankness, impartiality and honesty has evidently developed an unusual reader trust in all advertising appearing in The Times.

Member American Association of Advertising Agencies

Readers of The Times have confidence in its complete, accurate, unbiased news columns. Advertisers who use The Times share in this confidence, gaining thereby the patronage of one of the greatest volume markets in America . . . a market advertisers prefer above all others in New York.

During the past 12 months one New York advertising agency, Schwab & Beatty, Inc., placed more than 200,000 lines of advertising for their clients in The New York Times alone—almost three times as much as they placed in any other newspaper. The agency's letter tells why.

One outstanding example of this is a rowing-machine campaign a few years ago. In those days a rowing-machine for the home was an innovation. Yet the very first advertisement in The Times produced $7525.40 in direct orders at a cost of only $1404.00.

Another sales record (almost incredible, but checked and verified) is that of a single 170-line advertisement of a well-known life insurance company that sold $64,500 worth of insurance.

Equally impressive is the consistency of The Times as a sales producer. One of our clients has been using large space in it for 16 years. The original advertisement, which first appeared back in 1921, has been repeated, without change, frequently during each succeeding year. Yet, in 1937, it still pulls as well in The Times as it ever did.

Or suppose we refer to a famous correspondence course in mental training which has been advertised hundreds of times to your readers. Yet only recently a single 1000-line advertisement brought inquiries from 4586 people.

For years we have sold, through The Times, such products as pipes and cigars, etchings and lithographs, life insurance and annuities, radio apparatus, rowing-machines, hearing devices, silverware, jewelry, books and correspondence courses--and sold them at a net profit.

Month after month, year after year, the sales (all charted and recorded on cards) continue to stand up; continue to substantiate our judgment in selecting your newspaper. The sales MUST stand up, for with so many of our clients solely dependent on direct results from their advertising, it should be quite evident that neither The New York Times nor any other newspaper would be used so consistently unless it produced a net profit.

We join with you in your expressed hope that The Times will run even more linage for us during the coming twelve months, because it means that The Times will have earned it.

Very truly yours,
V. O. Schwab
President

Stock Cheered Heartily as He Resumes Work

BY CECIL SMITH.

With the stage of the pavilion banked with flowers and ferns, Ravinia park was host to Dr. Frederick Stock last night, as he returned from his long vacation to conduct the closing concert of the 1937 Ravinia festival. The occasion was one of genuine and universal rejoicing, for Dr. Stock had been absent from his Chicago Symphony orchestra since last March, when illness forced him to give up active work.

If the orchestra had played poorly and if Dr. Stock had not been up to his wonted form, the sentiments aroused by the reunion of our greatly loved conductor with his audience would have been enough to make the evening a heart-warming one. With the orchestra playing with more beauty of tone and more musical impact than at any other time this summer, and with Dr. Stock offering the full profundity of his musical wisdom, the concert was unforgettable.

The program was composed of music upon which for many seasons past Dr. Stock has placed his unique print—Georg Schumann's "Liebesfruhling" overture; the third symphony of Saint-Saëns for orchestra and organ; Ravel's "The Waltz"; Stravinsky's "Fire Bird" suite, and the final of Wagner's "The Twilight of the Gods."

Against the background of summer's music played by half a dozen conductors of as many varying musical viewpoints the monumental sweep of Dr. Stock's knowledge of his scores was doubly impressive. In retrospect no other conductor quite seemed to match his ability to see the full plan of a large musical work and to relate all its details to the significance of the whole.

This remarkable musical mastery was fully apparent to the audience, who greeted the finish of the symphony with a demonstration more tumultuous than any other this summer.

Fritz Reiner, Hungarian born conductor of international repute, conducted the orchestra Saturday evening and yesterday afternoon. On Saturday he chose Beethoven's third "Lenore" overture and "Eroica" symphony and a series of excerpts from Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," "Siegfried," and "Tannhäuser." Yesterday afternoon's list included three new items—Respighi's orchestration of the Bach Prelude and fugue in D major, the march from the "Karelia" suite by Sibelius and Leo Weiner's Divertimento after old Hungarian dances—as well as Mozart's familiar G minor symphony "The Swan of Tuonela" by Sibelius, three of the Dvorak Slavonic dances, and the overture to Smetana's "The Bartered Bride."

At the close of his last program yesterday afternoon Mr. Reiner was cheered happily on his way by a vigorous fanfare from the orchestra and the pounding palms of a large audience.

So far as his contributions of the week-end are concerned, he earned this tribute primarily by his authentic and zestful approach to the Slavic and Hungarian dance music on yesterday's program, and by his experienced and theater-wise reading of Saturday's Wagnerian music.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

A SNOWSTORM of letters—literally hundreds—came to this desk giving the wording of the children's counting-out game inquired about that begins, Onery, ogry, ickery Anne.

Readers from all parts of the country seem to have known the ritual in their childhood and dug into the under layers of memory to find the gibberishlike lines.

A version from Rushville, Ill., as it was repeated in the '70s; one from Streator from the early '80s; the version popular in Nashville a half a century ago, and one as a Yankee grandfather taught it in the last century.

There were Michigan and Iowa versions, one from old Vincennes and several from Lacon, Ill., from Sandusky, and Piqua and other Ohio towns. There was the Blackford county, Ind., version of seventy years ago, the way a German grandmother taught it in Cheyenne, and the wording imparted by a Great-Aunt Sally. Business executives found the childish rime underlying their grown-up knowledge and dictated it to secretaries; old ladies wrote it in feeble chirography; little boys of 10 spelled it out in childish script as they had heard it from their elders. A man wrote it as he had learned it when he was "roughing it in Kansas in 1872, from an immigrant boy from Cattaraugus county, N. Y." A woman as she learned it in a Cambridge, Mass., childhood.

THE highly interesting part of the response to the printed line of childish doggerel is that most of the writers say they never saw the counting-out rime in print and, therefore, are spelling phonetically. This indicates that it has been imparted from parents to children, for generations, like the runes of the Norsemen or the lays of the minstrels.

There are many variations, probably sectional. Some versions say Queevy, quavy, Irish Mary. Fillason, follason, is sometimes phillipson, phollapson, and there are different endings, such as singalum, sangulum, buck, and Bee, bay, borum, buck.

A woman who learned it when she was a little girl in Keithstown, Ill., which town recently celebrated its centennial, learned it with the ending, Ink, spink, spiddledy, spew, somebody's out, and that one's you.

A FAVORED version is:

THE derivation of the above counting-out rime, and of many others that have come in, appears to be shrouded in mystery. Did the children of the revolutionary war times, perhaps, sing tauntingly, "Queavy, quavy, English navy?" Quave is an obsolete word meaning to quake, to tremble, according to the Oxford dictionary, and quavey means soft, tremulous. The fact that one version that came in rimed "Tory tan" and "ickery Anne" lends some credence to this theory. In a later column, perhaps, we shall print the results of some research on the subject.

Presents Opera Box Today to De Paul Music School

Mrs. James G. Shakman, chairman of the Opera Luncheon club, will present a season box to the Chicago City Opera company to Arthur Besher, dean of music at De Paul university, at the club's weekly luncheon today at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mrs. William Marshall Ellis will be hostess.

Mary Grubbs Is Engaged to Hugh Seyfarth

BY JUDITH CASS.

TWO engagements of interest were announced at parties over the week-end. In Barrington yesterday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Robert Buckley entertained at cocktails to celebrate the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Grubbs, to Hugh M. Seyfarth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Seyfarth of Highland Park.

On Saturday afternoon, at a tea given by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph A. Bard and their daughter, Miss Janet Bard, at their home in Highland Park, Mr. and Mrs. Sellar Bullard of Santa Barbara, Cal., formerly of Highland Park, announced the engagement of their eldest daughter, Carol, to Richard Hubbard Howland, son of Carl Badger Howland and the late Mrs. Howland of Providence, R. I.

From 4 until 7 o'clock yesterday most of their Barrington neighbors came to the Buckleys' attractive home to congratulate Miss Grubbs and her fiancé. Assisting at the party was the former Katherine Grubbs, now Mrs. Robert K. Fobes, who, with Mr. Fobes and their 2 year old daughter, Kirk, came from St. Paul, Minn., for the occasion.

Miss Grubbs attended the University School for Girls and has been following a career of decorating in one of the Barrington shops. Mr. Seyfarth was graduated from Princeton in 1934, and is engaged in business in Chicago. The wedding will take place early in 1938.

Miss Bullard, Mother, and Sister on Visit.

It was particularly fitting that the engagement of Miss Bullard to Mr. Howland should be announced in the Bard home, for the two families have been close friends for many years. Miss Bullard, Miss Bard, and the former Miss Barbara Bullard, now Mrs. Charles A. Storke II., all were introduced to society at a party given jointly by the Bards and the Bullards at the Exmoor Country club five years ago. Mrs. Bullard, Miss Carol, and the youngest Bullard daughter, Miss Clari-Jean, are spending a few days with the Bards on their way back to their California home from a trip around the world.

Mr. Howland was not present at the announcement party, for he still is in Greece, where he and Miss Bullard met two and a half years ago when she was attending school there. Mr. Howland is a fellow of the Agora Excavations of Athens, and after he and Miss Bullard are married within few months they will return to Greece to make their home for a year.

Miss Bullard attended the Roycemore school and Wells college, and is a provisional member of the Santa Barbara Junior league. Mr. Howland was graduated from Brown university in 1931 and received his master's degree at Harvard in 1933. After a year in Greece, he and his bride will come to the United States to live.

Caroline Platt to Wed William C. Leff Aug. 19.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Vilas Platt have gone to Manitowoc, Wis., to visit his parents, the Edward M. Platts, until after the wedding of his sister, Miss Caroline Alida Platt, to William Coleman Leff on Aug. 19 in Manitowoc.

The wedding will take place at 4 o'clock in the Platts' home, with a reception afterward. Mr. Platt will be best man for his future brother-in-law. Mr. Leff, who is the son of the late Dr. and Mrs. William Leff of Birmingham, Ala., is in business in New York, and he and his bride will make their home there.

While the Platts are in Manitowoc, Mrs. Platt's mother, Mrs. Franklin Leavitt, is taking care of their 10 month old daughter. Mr. Leavitt is

Now Is Time to Pick Your Fur Ensemble

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Some of the best finds of the season can be snapped up now by knowing shoppers from the first showings of new fall clothes. The distinctive ensembles that are never copied, or, if they are, you can never find them weeks later when the urge to own them takes your mind.

The best looking fur coat and dress ensembles now are the snappy all-purpose coats teamed with a slim one piece costume dress.

Try as you will later in the season, you'll never find them. So grab them now and grin later. Since gray is going to give both brown and black a good race for the fashion spotlight next winter, we shopped the gray collections and found some knockout ensembles. Slick, slim gray wool dresses of wool that is softened to a caress and made with stunning details and a simplicity that only genius can achieve.

One has long fitted sleeves, a straight bodyline, and four pockets edged with a scroll loop design in gleaming silver kidskin. Another has a wine red zipper down the front, wine red suede bands all the way round the square pockets and a wine red velvet handkerchief tucked in the pocket of the coat. A third has huge tarnished silver metal buttons, like outsize filigree work, three at the belt, and two high at the throat. There is a huge disc at the collar of the fur coat. All the dresses are dark gunmetal gray for contrast to the coats.

The coats . . . the smartest and the best wearing affairs, are the short lengths just clearing the knee-line. They come in gray kidskin, a stunning shade that virtually any one can wear. The others are of effective chincalette in grays and gray white shadings.

All have a casual style, with easy loose sleeves, all are lined with deep gray satin . . . you can buy the ensemble [dress and coat], as is, or buy the coat without the dress. The prices are moderate, especially during August. And you'll get the newest combines and the pick of the showings if you buy now!

Sound Experts Know Secrets of Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—One of the paradoxical gentlemen of Hollywood is Sigfried Baden. He earns his daily bread by listening. He has been listening to movie stars ever since sound made the shadow screen articulate, but Baden says, "I've only seen two or three stars in the flesh whom I could recognize."

Eight or ten hours a day he sits between three walls and a panel full of meters and knobs while he keeps his ears glued to his apparatus. He recognizes stars merely by numbers. Baden works for the Sam Goldwyn units at United Artists studio.

Studio recorders in other studios sit in portable sound booths on the sets where their pictures are being shot, and get to know the stars, but not so for Mr. Goldwyn and Mr. Baden. He does his sound recording on the back lot in a different building, a quarter of a mile from the stages where the camera is shooting. By means of a machine which turns sound into light he puts the proper part of what he hears onto film.

The numbers which mean Gary Cooper, Joel McCrea, Merle Oberon, and Miriam Hopkins to Baden are on the current meter which is to a sound recorder what a sextant is to a navigator. When the needle on the meter goes up to fifty and stays there, Baden knows Gary Cooper is reading lines on stage five for "Marco Polo." When his needle jumps to the top of the dial and jiggles, Baden says he knows Cooper has stopped talking and Sigrid Gurie has entered the dialog.

This solitary man in his thirties says he doesn't miss meeting movie people, but that he does have one complaint about his job. When something funny comes in over the wire he laments the lack of somebody to laugh with.

And he frequently gets something to laugh about. Microphones on the sets are often kept "alive" when the company isn't shooting. Nobody on the stage ever seems to think about quiet conversations being picked up, but Baden has heard plenty that was never intended for anybody's ears. He says there's no sound man's code of ethics that he knows about but he's never heard of one violating any confidence that's overheard in such a manner.

Baden says he was tempted only once. That was the day he heard Barbara Stanwyck tell her secretary about the watches she had bought for the crew members who worked with her on "Stella Dallas." Baden wanted to tell the boys so they'd be sure to have some gift for her, too.

But he didn't. And he was glad he kept faith with himself because he found out later the crew had already got together a carload of gifts for Miss Stanwyck anyway.

Spain, torn by war and revolution a century ago as she is today, provides the background for "The Firefly."

The old operetta has been cleverly revived and beautifully produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It boasts two personable stars, a capable supporting cast, excellent photography, and lilting music that is pleasantly familiar and effectively presented.

War and romance, gayety and tragedy figure in the old tale of two lovers, torn by duty as spies to warring countries. As a popular entertainer in Madrid Nina flirts with a strange man in order to dismiss a French soldier from whom she has extracted all needed information. The young man, enamored, follows her when she leaves the city for Bayonne.

One of the most enchanting episodes of the film, I thought, was this trip, made in a carriage, with the son of the driver, a charming little boy, running ahead of the coach piping a gay, weird little tune as they forge through the dusty, mountainous country. Don Diego then sings "The Donkey's Serenade," a melodious addition to the original music.

Nina soon sets about her task of capturing the heart of Napoleon's newly appointed aid in order to gain information, although she has fallen in love with the persistent Don Diego. She fails in her mission and discovers she has been betrayed by her lover, a spy for France.

Napoleon forces the king to abdicate and seizes Spain, but revolution breaks out. The film winds through a tortuous trail of plots and counterplots to the finale.

Miss MacDonald is at her best as Nina and lovely in becoming costumes. Mr. Jones handles his lines well and is nicely suited to the rôle of Don Diego. Both are in excellent voice and their singing of the old favorites—"Sympathy," "Love Is Like a Firefly," and "Giannina Mia"—is perhaps the most pleasing feature of the picture.

As a whole, it is thoroughly enjoyable, but would, I think, have been greatly improved if shortened considerably. A judicious cutting, particularly of the latter part of the film, would have made it much more effective and less wearying to see. It runs almost two hours and a half.

"Find This Girl"

BY ROY VICKERS [Copyright: 1937: By Roy Vickers.]

INSTALMENT I.
FREED OF A MURDER CHARGE.

At the back of the gallery of one of the Courts of the Old Bailey a man bent his head a little and whispered to his companion:

"Do you want to wait for the verdict?"

"We may as well. The jury can't be long."

In spite of their desire to be unnoticed these two were more than a little conspicuous. Each had an air of social distinction, whereas the rest of the onlookers were obviously drawn from the lower classes. For the case of Bessie Mersand had not attracted even the morbid section of the fashionable world.

The woman, Gwynneth Bentley, leaned against her escort. Their shoulders touched and the touch gave her a sense of possession. Roy Gleason was hers, body and soul—and she knew it and he knew it and both rejoiced in the fact.

"You think she'll get off, don't you, Roy?"

"I suppose so—she certainly looks guileless," he answered indifferently. "And gullible, I should say. She seems to have believed everything everybody told her."

"Quite so!" returned the woman. "That's why I brought you here to have a look at her."

"Why on earth should I——?"

"Sh! They're bringing her back."

The prisoner was being brought back into the dock and at sight of her one would have said at once that word "prisoner" was absurd. True that the young face was drawn and haggard but in the wide-set blue eyes there was no fear—rather bewilderment. It was that look of bewilderment which had spoilt prosecuting counsel's speech. He was bound to remind them he had said, that some of her actions were questionable, that her answers in the witness box, though given with apparent honesty, really explained nothing, but that he would be the last to urge them to a hasty verdict of "guilty" on that account. It was almost as good as saying that he himself did not believe her to be guilty.

Long before that speech the public had sensed that she was innocent. The newspapers had not made very much of it, although it was a murder case.

The story of Bessie Mersand was too simple, too lacking in lurid detail. A qualified nurse, she had gone into private practice and had become nurse-companion to an elderly lady at Brighton. After two years of Bessie's care the patient had shown considerable improvement. Then she died so suddenly that the doctor had refused a death certificate. Subsequently inquiries revealed that death had been caused by an enormous overdose of medinal, which she was allowed to take in small quantities as a sleeping draught.

Suspicion once started, it became quite clear that Bessie, like any other nurse, had had innumerable opportunities for administering the fatal dose. The only motive alleged was the comparatively trifling legacy of fifty pounds. To be just to the police, Bessie had been more than a little muddled in her answers, with the result that she had been put on trial.

"Do you find the prisoner guilty or not guilty?"

"Not guilty."

A short burst of applause from the gallery and the cry of the usher drowned the rest of the formalities. The judge gave a curt order to discharge the prisoner and called the next case.

"Well, that's over!" said Roy Gleason. "Can't say it was amusing. Why did we come?"

"That's where you're wrong—it isn't all over. It's just beginning. And you can't take me anywhere to tea. I've got a job to do."

"When shall I see you again?"

"I don't know. Probably not for a week or two."

"You're not going to spend all that time with your husband, surely!"

"How nice of you to be so jealous—even of an invalid like Alfred! You needn't worry. I probably shan't see him either. And don't ask a lot of questions, there's a dear!"

. . . . . .

Free! After six weeks in prison awaiting trial there was exhilaration in the thought that you could walk just where you liked without any one on earth having the right to question you.

The sense of bewilderment was still strong upon Bessie Mersand. There had been the calm, eventless days at Brighton, with an affection springing up for her patient—then the quick ending with sudden horror.

The horror lay in the thought that she should be suspected of so dreadful a thing as murder. She had no ill treatment to complain of. Every one had been personally pleasant enough to her—extraordinarily pleasant, seeing that she was a suspected murderer.

Right up to the last the police had been considerate. They had smuggled her through the crowds at the Old Bailey and set her down at her own request in Trafalgar square. Her luggage, they had told her, would be sent to respectable lodgings in Pimlico, which they had chosen for her. She need have no further dealings with officialdom.

There would be time enough to go to the lodgings. First, there was the new found pleasure of walking to be enjoyed. She crossed, passed through the Admiralty arch, and so into St. James' park.

She stopped by the lake and stared idly at the pelicans. Already the first thrill of being free had worn off. She must make plans for the future.

The future! She had no near relatives and her little circle of friends seemed to have melted away.

"One way and another—tough luck, Miss Mersand!" A deep masculine voice had spoken behind her and she started at mention of her name. A big, bony man, who might have been anything between 25 and 35 and actually was halfway between the two, stood beside her. He had a hard jaw, a sharp nose and gentle, intelligent eyes. He was well, but not too fashionably, dressed.

"Are you a detective?" she asked nervously.

"Ah! I ought to be, but I'm not. Behold in me, my dear Miss Mersand, one of Scotland Yard's lost opportunities. . . . Sorry! I mustn't fool with you when you're miserable. Dismiss it as a misguided attempt to cheer you up."

"But why should you want to cheer me up?"

"'All trials are trials for one's life just as all sentences are sentences of death,'" he quoted. "Although you've been acquitted you've been sentenced to death—as a nurse."

"What do you mean?" she pleaded.

"Just this. Nobody ever thought you really poisoned the old lady. Everybody agrees you're innocent. But when it comes to engaging you as a nurse every one will say: 'Wasn't that the girl who was supposed to have poisoned an old woman who was her patient? Of course, she was found not guilty—but I think we'd better have somebody else.'"

"Do you really mean people would be as beastly as that?"

"I don't know about beastly. You've got to take human nature as you find it—and you'll find it like that. Come and sit down."

He was dictatorial, but he was the kind of man one instinctively obeyed. A moment later she was sitting next to him on a wooden chair.

"You'll have to change your name," he told her. "That'll make difficulties with references and certificates. Daresay I could fix that for you. But you'll need a holiday first. You're dead beat."

"I suppose it's part of the general madness of things," Bessie said, "that I should discuss my future with a man whose name I do not even know."

"My name? O—Jim. If you feel you don't know me well enough, it'll be Mr. Watkin to you."

INSTALMENT XLIX.
FOR KEEPS.

It was a snowy day late in January. Amos Newton was sitting down soberly to a late breakfast, his mind occupied with the routine duties of the day. Suddenly there was a sound of laughter, and of lively argument, followed by a rush of flying feet on the stairs. The next minute Michael, a bowl of porridge in his hand, had burst into the dining room and slipped into a seat at the table beside Newton. It was his first appearance downstairs.

Then he was gone, and Michael ate his breakfast food.

"Good morning," Newton said dryly.

"Old woman!" Michael said good humoredly, ducking his head in the direction of the departing doctor. "Three times I've had him examine me to see if I wasn't well. Twice he managed to discover some little weakness, and I settled down again to this damn waiting. But today he admitted that I was perfectly sound. Then he ordered me to stay quiet a week longer, to get my strength back!"

"So you struck?"

"I tried to persuade him. First I offered to lick him; then to jump farther than he could; then to take a full bowl of porridge, and beat him downstairs."

"So you think you're well?"

"You look huskier in your dressing gown," Newton said regretfully. "Why don't you get fat?"

"Gimme time," Michael grinned, stretching out his long legs. "There's lot to upholster, that's all. What I want to know is this—are we celebrating tonight? Are we finishing that dinner party?"

Michael's voice was eager and his eyes alert and determined.

"Rather short notice, don't you think?"

"You better do your best for me," said Michael, reaching for a muffin. "If you don't I'll be taking matters into my own hands. I've served you notice."

Amos was a little surprised at the calm way in which Kit received the news. Her tired mind appeared to refuse to accept its implications: That the long, dreadful strain was over. With the easing of the strain she was surprised to find that she was a little frightened at meeting Michael again. She felt so infinitely older, and more serious. Suppose he did not care so much for the sober young woman she felt herself to be, and were even alienated by the once gay Kit who must surely show some scars of the weeks she had gone about with death in her heart.

She went home early to her forlorn little apartment. It had been neglected for a long time. Since Joan went, it had become merely a place to sleep. She unlocked the door absently, almost afraid of what was ahead for her.

It was the great bowl of tulips which first caught her eye. Tulips in January! It seemed natural. And books, of course, stacks of them. As she fingered them lovingly, she suddenly realized what they were: Travel books, enticing picture books and Badaekers and railway guides. Her eyes traveled swiftly to other objects on the table: A sack of buttered popcorn, a dignified dill pickle in the middle of a large dinner plate. Michael's delightful absurdities. To the dill pickle was tied a thread, and the thread led to a little card, across which was written: "Or, if you prefer—" The card lay on top of a gorgeous bandanna handkerchief, in which something was securely tied. She untied the knots with shaking fingers, then stared, as the pearls dripped out, the long string of flawless pearls, an offended jeweler's answer to a scornful young patron. No one would ever see miles of pearls like those.

Suddenly Katharine began to cry. It was in pure relief, but sobbing is not a reassuring sound. There was a thump of feet in the next room. Some one had jumped from the bed. The next moment Michael was in the doorway, Michael, in a flowery dressing gown. His hair was towsled, his cheeks pink from sleep.

"What is it, dear?" he begged. "Must we cry? Isn't that behind us now?"

Katharine gave a stifled scream.

"Michael!" she cried. "Am I just seeing what I have so wanted to see? Michael, is it really you?"

"Yep," he said, trying hard to keep his voice under his control. "I moved in today." His eyes were pleading, yet they laughed. "I hope you aren't going to mind. I'm very little trouble any more. I think you can see me through."

Katharine's rare dimple appeared. She peeked up at him, looking absurdly sweet and young.

"I ought to rent that room," she admitted, "and I think you would be a good tenant."

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Women in the past twelve months," says Miss Dorothy Giles, whose writings deal with the psychology of women, their emotional problems and adjustments to life, "have started on the road to developing themselves as women, and there's no stopping them."

That women are more interested in their own personality than they are in money, clothes, jewels, furniture, and all the other symbols of prosperity is the conviction expressed in a recent broadcast given by Miss Giles.

All of us Miss Giles, argues, need to think better of ourselves, for all of us are more attractive than we give ourselves credit for.

"Take ten minutes regularly every morning of the week, Miss Giles advises women. "Choose a time when you can be sure the telephone won't ring and interrupt you. Go into a quiet room and make yourself comfortable in a big chair. Or, if you like, lie on a couch and relax completely. If you have a lot of annoying worries on your mind, imagine yourself tying all these into one bundle and leaving the bundle outside the door of the room. Then shut the door. Say to yourself that the power that created the universe created you, a human being; that there is a place for you that is yours by inalienable right, and in that place you are needed and happy. Keep your mind on this thought for ten minutes. Then get up and go about your day's occupations."

Exercise and Diet Essential Parts of a Beauty Program

Women, all women, might take their cue from the well known beauty houses which, in recent years, have gone in fairly heavily for diet and exercise along with the beauty they sell in their packaged products. There's a reason for adding these essential beautifiers, diet and exercise, to the beautifying program, said reason being the simple and homely fact that one achieves better skin, better life and gloss to hair, a brighter light in the eye, and, by all means, more youth to the step, when she adds diet and exercise to her daily regimen.

There are certain cosmetic houses now that go in for elaborate systems of exercise and massage, and others that provide fresh fruit and raw vegetable meals to guide you.

These additional measures adopted by beauty salons are called new aspects of the beauty game. And sane and sensible is this emphasis on exercise and diet. There's a sure, certain and foolproof side to including diet and exercise in a beauty-improving program. I never have seen it fail yet that when a woman began getting her weight down by diet and exercise, she took additional care of her general features, such as hair, nails, and skin, etc. It's the magic way of restoring pride in the soul. So, psychologically, the diet and exercise added to the usual local application of emollients supply a powerful urge to make something unusually fine out of what one has.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

By all odds the neatest trick of the season is the fat, round, little stick, which looks somewhat like an overgrown lipstick, that contains lip rouge, cleansing cream, powder base, and eye shadow! It's a masterpiece of compactness and irresistibly attractive. Costs practically nothing, too.

It's all done with the aid of sections, pyramided. What looks like a plump red, white and blue lipstick is actually four separate compartments which screw into one another. The very top section, banded in red, contains your lip rouge, which may be in any of three nice shades. You can use this for cheek rouge, too, if you like.

In the second section white is your cleansing cream—an astonishing amount crowded into such a small compartment. It's a fluffy, quick acting cream that's a joy to use for the hasty freshening up process.

In the compartment below this is foundation cream and the base of the stick is a small section devoted to eye shadow. Here, too, you can have a choice of shades—green, violet, or blue.

The amazing thing is that the beauty kit stick is no imposing tower; it measures just a fraction over two inches! It's fun—and immensely practical because you can tuck it into your purse—handy for use during the day when it's necessary to freshen up—and all your paraphernalia is out of reach.

Frock for the Midseason

WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCKS.

This is what is known as the difficult "midseason." What to wear? One of the answers is a simply tailored frock like this one, which is wearable at any hour of the day and which takes to either washable fabrics or lightweight fall materials.

The original of this tailored model is created in a striking combination. The skirt, collar, cuffs, and bodice panel are fashioned of navy crêpe, with the bodice of Roman striped sheer. The lines of the waist take beautifully to stripes, but if you prefer plaids or prints, by all means use them.

If you like, the dress may be made all in one material and one shade, with the buttons affording the only contrast. You may add a little peplum to the waist, if you prefer, and make the sleeves long. The carefully fitted skirt possesses inverted plaits in both front and back to provide desirable fullness.

Choose either summer or fall weight materials, depending upon the need of your wardrobe, and we know you will like this frock.

Style No. 3332 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 2⅞ yards of 39 inch material, with 1⅝ yards of 35 inch contrasting.

Pieced by one of the early St. Louis settlers, this attractive pieced pattern became one of St. Louis' favorite designs, as well as attaining a national reputation. "Missouri Star" and "Star of St. Louis" are similar and often confused, although which pattern was designed is a moot question. This particular "St. Louis Star" pattern is set together with alternate blocks of white surrounded by a border matching the plain blocks and bound in a contrasting color.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Before the nineteenth century it was called love-apple juice, and often believed to be a poison. But now we call it tomato juice and regard it simply as one of our most valuable foods.

Commercially canned tomato juice isn't expensive, and unless one has access to a good supply of fresh tomatoes, it isn't advisable to home can it. However, the process is quite simple and our department has received numerous requests for a recipe. Here it is:

Tomato Juice.
[6 pints.]

10 pounds ripe tomatoes
2 teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon sugar
½ onion
⅔ cup green pepper, chopped
1 cup celery, chopped

Cook tomatoes until pulpy; add other ingredients and heat to simmering [boiling will destroy some of the vitamin content]. Strain, bring to boiling, and pour into sterile jars. Seal.

Tomato juice may be canned without the addition of seasonings other than a little salt, if desired. The same method is used, that of cooking the tomatoes until soft, straining them, bringing to a boil, and then sealing.

Tomato Preserves
[Nine 6-ounce glasses.]

4 cups crushed, peeled tomatoes
6½ cups granulated sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin
¼ cup lemon juice
Grated lemon rind

Cook the tomatoes uncovered for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add lemon juice and rind. The tomatoes should now measure 3 cups, having cooked down somewhat. Place 3 cups tomatoes with sugar in a kettle. Mix well and bring to a full boil over high heat. Stir constantly and boil hard for 2 minutes. Remove from fire and stir in pectin. Skim and pour quickly. Paraffin hot preserves at once.

Tomato and Apple Marmalade.

Peel, slice, and drain enough tomatoes to make 2 cups. Peel, core, and chop enough apples to make 2 cups. Grind 1 lemon and combine the three. Cook for 15 minutes, add 3 cups sugar and cook until thick and clear. Add ¼ cup chopped preserved or candied ginger for the last few minutes of cooking.

Culbertson's "Gold Book of Bidding and Play"

THE REQUIRED STRENGTH FOR THE FIVE NO TRUMP CONVENTION.

[Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.]

The required strength for the five no trump convention is simply that the combined hands will produce thirteen tricks provided a trump trick is not lost. The following examples of sound rebiddable trump suits will give the idea of the importance of the Grand Slam Force, which discovers whether or not partner holds both of the missing high trump honors:

Q J x x x x, A J x x x x, K J 10 x x, A J 10 x x, Q J 10 x x, K 10 x x x x, A x x x x x x, Q x x x x x x.

The Grand Slam Force is a thrilling and dramatic bid. Properly used, it will offer the only means of capitalizing an important group of hands.

Another warning must be sounded, however. Like several other subtle and unusual conventions or inferences in the Culbertson system, they are not of the must kind. They are les specialites. Average players, or even fair players, need not know them, although, in fairness, they should be informed about them. It follows that the Grand Slam Force should be used only with partners who understand its underlying inferences.

SOUTH

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 clubs [1]	Pass	4 diam'ds [2]	Pass
4 hearts [3]	Pass	4 spades [4]	Pass
5 diam'ds [5]	Pass	5 spades	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

[1] Asking bid. [2] Shows second round club control and diamond ace. [3] Asking bid. [4] Has no heart control, therefore signs off. [5] If South can locate second round diamond control, as well as first, he still may decide to go to a grand slam.

West opens the diamond jack. Since declarer sees that he will be able to discard dummy's losing diamond on his own club suit, dummy's ace is played and the ace and king of spades drop the outstanding trumps. The club suit then is run off, and this situation is reached:

NORTH
♠ J 10 3

WEST

♣ None

SOUTH
♦ Q
♣ None

If the heart finesse works, obviously declarer will have no trouble. But it is every declarer's duty to anticipate an unfavorable position of cards. The diamond queen, therefore, is led and ruffed in dummy, and now the nine of hearts, not a low heart, is led. If East does not cover, declarer plays the three spot, thus insuring that when West wins he must return a heart up to declarer's tenace, or lead a diamond, which will permit a ruff in one hand and the discard of a heart in the other. If East does cover, declarer must play the queen, hoping that, if the queen loses, West will have the jack also, and will have to lead back to the combinea tenaos of the eight in dummy and the ace in declarer's hand. A low heart from the dummy, instead of the nine, would spell doom to the contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: The final contract is four spades. Partner made no bid. What is my correct opening lead from:
♠ K 9 ♥ J 8 7 6 ♦ K 10 4 ♣ A 9 6 3?

Answer: Heart six.

Two N. Y. Teams of 4 Will Play Today for Bridge Championship

Asbury Park, N. J., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Two New York teams, one of them Oswald Jacoby's Four Aces, tonight gained the finals of the knockout team of four championship, closing event of the eleventh annual summer tournament of the American Bridge league. The title will be decided tomorrow afternoon in a 48 board match.

The Four Aces, composed of Jacoby, David Burnstine, Howard Schenken, M. D. Maier, and Charles Goren, will meet the team of Fred Kaplan, Morrie Ellis, A. M. Barnes, Phillip Ambramsohn, and Henry Chanin.

Jacoby's team gained the finals at the expense of the Chicago team of Walter Jacobs, S. M. Becker Jr., Arthur Glatt, and Albert Weiss, by a score of 3,780 points. A 2,600 point victory over Mrs. Anne Leary, Mrs. Edith Russell, Miss Ruth Chase, and J. Silverman, New York, cast the Kaplan combination in the rôle of title contenders.

Whatever the outcome of tomorrow's match, the dethroning of all 1936 champions has been completed.

Quiet of Camp Charms Babies and Mothers

Out at Camp Algonquin, winding 43 acre tract along the Fox river, some 320 Chicago mothers and children this week are discovering the quiet joys of quiet living, so rare to city dwellers.

Work worn mothers, rachitic children, thin little tenement babies, all spent a tranquil Sunday there yesterday as part of the two weeks' outing made possible for them mainly through the contributions from TRIBUNE readers.

Since June 20, 1,280 have gained new health and vigor as well as suntan and a source of new pleasure at the camp. And before the camp closes its 28th season on Sept. 8, 800 more will go.

Church and dinner over, the rest of the day was free. The entire camp turned out of doors. Even the camp's nine babies, growing fat and brown under the watchful eyes of special nurses, lolled on blankets outside their turquoise nursery. The oval swimming pool, with its border of willows, was filled. And every available rowboat, 14 in all, was out on the river.

While the children played, or roamed about with counselors, the 60 or 70 mothers at the camp had a combination tea and handicraft exhibit.

It costs $9.10 to send a boy or girl to Camp Algonquin, and $25.20 for a two week vacation for a mother and her two children.

Gifts to Camp Algonquin:

P. H. C.	$ 10.00
L. G.	2.50
Total	$ 12.50
Previously acknowledged	$1,508.07

Friends of THE TRIBUNE ice fund rallied yesterday to the need of tenement families and contributed $81 to be distributed to homes where poverty has made ice a luxury. Yesterday's donations will supply ice to eighty families, but scores of beseeching letters pour in daily at the United Charities office.

Yesterday's contributions were:

Sally to Invite 100 Boys and Girls to Funny Musical Play

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Tribune Charities, Inc.]

"Ka-choo!" You'd never believe that a sneeze could cause much excitement, would you? Well, if you come to my party Aug. 19 you'll find out how it upset a whole country. We'll take a trip to Cranbury Cross and see what happens in "A King's Sneezes."

It's a very funny musical play, being presented especially for my guests by the Jack and Jill players under the direction of Marie Agnes Foley. One hundred boys and girls will be invited and we'll see the show in the group's own private little theater, which is built to scale for boys and girls. The chairs are just the right size for children, but it has a real little stage, with curtains and footlights and everything you'd see in a real theater. It has been enlarged and redecorated this year.

If you'd like to go with me to this show, write me a letter telling why. Give your name and address, and age. Have your letter reach Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago, by Thursday.

Child's Meals Ought to Be Fun for Him

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

The baby squealed and beat joyfully on the tray of his high chair as he watched his mother pour out his tomato juice and stir the cereal in the saucepan.

But when she put it to his eager lips he took only half and then pushed the glass vigorously away. Did she present it again and insist that he finish it before he begin on his next course?

No, she went on talking as she fed him his cereal.

"Sonny's been hitting the high spots this afternoon," she said, Sonny being 16 months old. "We went out to tea and he had a few crumbs of cake and a few sips of milk, so I guess the edge is off his appetite."

And with a calm air she replaced the partly finished dish of cereal and milk on the table.

"And by the way, John [the older child] is eating much better," she said. "He used to have his supper all alone, before we ate. But one night Sam got home early so I let Johnny have dinner with us. And he ate so much more that I've been doing that ever since."

It may have been more than one thing that was responsible for this. Perhaps it was partly due to the fact that this arrangement moved his supper hour along so he was hungrier, and partly that the meal took on an interest and a sociability lacking before, a new factor which added to the zest with which he ate.

There are two points worth noticing here. One is that children and even babies have not always the same appetite and the same capacity for food. Sometimes you can perceive the reason, as for instance the baby's little spree at the tea; and sometimes you can't.

The other point is that the atmosphere of a meal has a lot to do with the food enjoyment of those who are eating. Pleasant talk, fun, jokes, and good feeling generally, promote appetite and digestion.

This is the sort of thing I meant when I spoke last week about using common sense to avoid mealtime troubles.

SOX SPLIT; CUBS DEFEAT BEES, 3-0 AND 3-2

ALL-STAR GUARDS MEET EVERY ALL-STAR REQUIREMENT

STARCEVICH, REID BACKED BY GREAT RESERVES

Packers to Find 'Em Tough.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The long soaring kick is an effective defensive weapon on the gridiron when your team has been jammed back to its own goal line. A long distance kicker also can gain ground in punt exchanges. Accurate forward passers will furnish brilliant open plays so completely satisfying to spectators. But great football teams base superiority on a sound running game built around men who can block.

Minnesota, Pittsburgh, Northwestern, Notre Dame, Washington. These teams last year played hard smashing, clean blocking football. Certainly they could pass, but when they called their passes, their air plays worked more because of the effectiveness of the running attack than because a Baugh or a Bulvid was throwing the ball.

Nine coaches out of ten—perhaps more—will tell you they prefer an aggressive, hard blocking line in front of ball carriers than an air attack which may collapse because of an excellently prepared defense or bog down in inclement weather.

All-Stars Have Guards.

And when you are placing your men, don't forget that a pair of driving, blocking guards is all important if you want to shake loose your ten yard half back for a touchdown.

The All-Stars, who face the Green Bay Packers Sept. 1 at Soldiers' field, will start two men at the guard positions who have every physical qualification for those jobs. They are Max Starcevich of the University of Washington Pacific coast champions, and Steve Reid, captain of Northwestern's Big Ten champions. And Starcevich and Reid will be backed by eight others, including Bill Glassford of Pittsburgh, the eleven recognized as national champions, and Capt. John Lautar of Notre Dame.

Other guards are Cliff Kuhn of Illinois, Inwood Smith of Ohio State, Dick Bassi of Santa Clara, Gordon Dahlgren of Michigan State, Sam Galjevich of Knox, and Joe Saia of St. Viator.

Reid Key in N. U. Attack.

Reid was the outstanding player on Northwestern's line, a line which admittedly was the key to the Wildcats' victory march. His ability was recognized by his team mates when they named him the most valuable player in the eleven and thus placed him in nomination for THE TRIBUNE'S most valuable player award presented annually in the Western conference. He was a superb defensive player and his work inspired the Wildcats in their six game Big Ten schedule.

Strangely enough, Reid, who attended Leo High school in Chicago, thought so little of his own ability as a player that he did not report for the freshman squad at Northwestern until urged to do so by his fraternity. He won his freshman numerals, however, and in his sophomore season, after reserve duty in the early games, gave a splendid account of himself in the annual battle with Notre Dame and was immediately slated for a regular berth in 1935. Once he acquired status of a regular, Reid rose to stardom under the coaching of Lynn Waldorf and Burt Ingwersen. He was elected captain at the conclusion of the 1935 campaign and justified that choice by his splendid blocking and defensive work last season.

Iowa Boy Makes Good.

JOHNNY MIZE WEDS ST. LOUIS SOCIETY GIRL

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 8—(AP)—Johnny Mize, 24 years old, star first baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Miss Jene Adams, 19 year old St. Louis society girl, were married at a quiet church ceremony here today.

Mrs. Johnny Mize.

Miss Gladys Chambers of Fort Worth, Tex., a cousin of the bride, was her only attendant. Jimmy Brown, Cardinal second baseman, was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Ray R. Adams, the bride's parents, were the only other witnesses.

Following the wedding, the party attended the Philadelphia-Cardinal double-header, with Mize taking up his usual position at first base. The Cardinal players greeted Mize in the clubhouse with music furnished by Pepper Martin's string band. They played a wedding march, and "Marching Through Georgia."

Mize and his bride first met in Havana, Cuba, last spring while the Cards were playing a series of exhibition games with the Giants.

SOX END DROUTH AT BOSTON, 13-0, AFTER LOSING, 7-6

Whitehead Allows Only 4 Hits in Second Game.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Aug. 8.—The White Sox this afternoon emerged from a seven game losing streak by whipping the Boston Red Sox, 13 to 0, in an eight inning second game of a doubleheader. They had lost the first after scoring the potential winning run in the ninth, only to swoon in a painfully familiar manner in the latter half of the ninth. This gave the Red Sox their twelfth straight victory, 7 to 6, and the White Sox their seventh straight loss.

John Whitehead, abandoned by his support in New York last Tuesday when the Chicago staggers really set in, presided at the return to consciousness this afternoon. He allowed only four singles, a bunt by Jimmy Foxx in the second inning, singles by Ben Chapman and Gene Desautels at the start of the third and another single by Desautels just before the game was ended by the state Sunday law.

They Like Big Innings.

The first game was lost despite a five run fourth inning, but this did not destroy the White Sox desire for big sessions. They made five runs in the sixth inning of the second game and added six runs in the eighth, effecting all this business after two were out. The feature of this windup blast was Zeke Bonura's 18th homer of the year with the bases full.

Zeke scarcely became a hero in this superfluous effort, however, for his defensive play, with that of Jackie Hayes, is blamed for most of the agony the Chicagoans suffered after opening in New York last Tuesday.

The victory gave the Sox a record of five victories and nine defeats for their third eastern visit. They are scheduled to play seven games in Detroit and Cleveland before returning home a week hence.

FIRST GAME

In the fourth the White Sox proceeded after the fashion that made their constituency love 'em in the good old June and July days. Walker opened with a triple to right center and held on while Appling flied to Chapman. Radcliff singled to left, Walker scoring. Bonura doubled to right to put Radcliff across the plate. Piet also doubled to right, Bonura counting. Rensa doubled to left, scoring Piet, Kennedy bounced a single off McKain's shins, Rensa stopping at third. Marcum replaced McKain. Hayes flied to Cramer, whose throw beat Rensa to the plate. Rensa was safe, however, when Berg dropped the ball. Kreevich fanned.

Higgins Gets a Homer.

Higgins lifted his third home run of the series high over the left field wall with one out in the fifth. McNair doubled but Chapman fouled to Piet and Appling threw out Berg.

The Red Sox tied the score at 5 all in the eighth. Chapman opened with a triple off the wall in center and scored on Dallesandro's pinch fly.

Cramer opened the home ninth with his fourth hit, a single to left. Cronin, attempting to sacrifice, popped a foul to Bonura. Foxx lined a 420 foot triple to center, scoring Cramer with the tying run. Brown

Clif Melton held the Pirates to six hits in the first game while his mates pounded three pitchers for 13 hits. Mel Ott smacked his 23d home run of the season in the fourth inning of the first game and obtained one of the three hits off Weaver in the second.

CARLETON LETS BOSTON DOWN WITH ONE HIT

Cavarretta Breaks Up Both Games.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Phil Cavarretta, excused from a sentence on the bench because an outfielder was needed for the occasion, led the Cubs to a double triumph over Boston's Bees at Wrigley field yesterday before 28,000. Phil fired the shot that settled the first game, a one hit victory for Tex Carleton, and with another shot in the eighth inning of the second game he sent the Cubs over the top when it appeared as if the 30 year old Lou Fette had them stopped.

The scores were 3 to 0 and 3 to 2, putting the Cubs six games ahead of the pursuing Giants.

Carleton, whose last nine inning effort was a one hitter until the Giants added a pair in the ninth, traveled the no hit trail in the first game until reaching the seventh inning. Prior to that only four Bees had reached base, three on passes and the other on an error.

Fletcher Wrecks Record.

Then the no hit hopes vanished with two out in the seventh when Elburt Fletcher whistled an unmistakable double to right center and became one of the two men who reached second. In the last two innings only one fellow arrived at first. Carleton hit him with a pitched ball.

While Carleton was engaged in turning out his masterpiece, the Cubs had a little trouble with their own bats. For seven innings they were confronted by the 31 year old Jim Turner, a cagey worker like Fette, who yielded only seven hits, but the Cubs solved the problem in the old but still effective manner of getting them in a bunch. They turned loose four hits in the fourth inning for their three runs, the assault being built around Cavarretta's double with Demaree, Hartnett and Carleton assisting.

Root Is Injured.

The 38 year old Charley Root was delegated to handle the pitching against Fette in the second game, but a mishap carried the veteran out of action long before the finish. He was given a one run lead in the second inning, but in the next inning Gene Moore rifled a homer over the nearby fence with a man on base. Then Root had to quit at the end of the fifth, injuring his right hand while stopping a batted ball on which he started a double play with the bases filled. After that Leroy Parmelee and Clyde Shoun held the Bees in check.

Cavarretta, who was playing because Frey had to be called in from the outfield to fill in at short for Bill Jurges, out with a wrenched shoulder, did his second game heroics with the bases loaded. Fette got into this jam in the eighth on a single with none out and a pair of passes with two out. Cavarretta then drilled a single through short to change a 2 to 1 Boston lead into a 3 to 2 Cub victory.

FIRST GAME

The Cubs thought they had a run in the first inning of the opening game, but the umpires had a different idea. Galan opened with a single to left and continued to second on Johnson's error. Hack walked. Collins flied to left. Galan taking third, Demaree popped foul to Fletcher. Herman then spanked a low liner to right and Moore picked it off his shoe tops, but after the umpires had ruled on the play the Cubs beefed lustily. The umpires assured them they were wrong and the game proceeded.

Two were out in the fourth when Cavarretta's drive launched the parade of three runs. Demaree opened the inning with a single to center. Herman tried to bunt and popped foul to Mueller. Hartnett singled to left and was forced at second on Frey's grounder to English. Then

WEATHER'S HOT—JOCKY DOTTER IS EVEN HOTTER

11 Victories at Crete Bring Total to 106.

BY FRENCH LANE.

There's a new jocky sensation out at the Lincoln Fields course, and he's not an apprentice rider, either.

Veteran Bobby Dotter, all of 18 years of age, may never have any bigger days in his career than he's enjoying right now. On Saturday he won both stake races there, and just for good measure added another victory to his score.

Dotter makes no bones about it. He's endeavoring to top all the jockies in America for the year. Still, he's doing it the hard way.

Rides Against Best Jockies.

The national leaders at this time, for the most part, have been scoring their victories on the west Canada and northwest circuits. Dotter has been riding in Chicago all summer against the best jockies in the business. His triple victory at Lincoln Fields on Saturday not only gave him an outstanding lead for that meeting but it at the same time boosted his total for the year to 106.

He scored eleven victories during the first week of the Lincoln Fields season. That pace continued throughout the meeting will put him at the top of the American jocky list.

Four years ago Dotter started to exercise horses for Howard Oots, one of Kentucky's most noted horsemen. Tutoring him along also was Howard Wells, a nephew of Oots, who at the present time is directing Dotter's campaign.

Two years after he exercised his first horse Dotter climbed into the saddle to ride his first race. Many months went along before he was able to win a race.

First Victory on Pharolar.

The first horse to carry him past the winning post was Pharolar, at Churchill Downs, a year ago last spring. After that thrilling effort Dotter had a hard time bringing other winners home.

Dotter stayed with Trainer Wells and was riding for that horseman last fall when he started to earn a name for himself as a long shot rider. For one reason or another every one of Dotter's winners paid off in big, coarse bills.

Dotter never had been the top hand jocky around a race track until right now. Last fall it was the sensational riding of Basil James that overshadowed him. In the spring Apprentice Paul Ryan managed to crowd Dotter out of the spotlight.

Now Dotter is on top of them all and riding better than ever. He gets all the mounts on Thomas D. Taggart's great mare Marica. Not many horses are beating Marica this year.

He Can Make 102 Pounds.

Dotter can make 102 pounds, so he isn't likely to stop riding soon. He's in such great demand right now that eight mounts in one afternoon is his usual program.

You'll be seeing him in action again this afternoon at Lincoln Fields.

He's a Kentucky kid hailing from Covington. He has a younger brother who is getting his first riding lessons now at the Oots breeding farm near Lexington.

Resignations on Fight Board Are Explained

Joe Triner, chairman of the Illinois athletic commission, yesterday attempted to clear up the mystery surrounding the resignations from the board one week ago of Thomas Tuite, secretary, and Inspector William Bolton.

Immediately after he quit Tuite left for an indefinite stay in California and could not be reached for a statement. In advancing his reason for quitting Bolton explained that "my electrical business needs more of my time."

"They resigned to accept better positions," Triner said. "Tuite is in California now looking over a business proposition which may cause him to make his home there."

The chairman asserted that Gov. Horner is not yet ready to name a third member of the commission to fill the vacancy created by the death of Packey McFarland. He intimated that John Ricketts Jr. will not be named, contrary to reports current a few days ago. The position pays $4,500 a year.

John Owens, Chicago attorney, will be formally appointed today to succeed Tuite as secretary. The new official will receive $3,500 per annum.

Guards? You'll Find All-Stars Have the Best!

years of age, is also an ideal guard. Starcevich was born in Centerville, Ia., but he attended high school two years ago in Duluth, Minn., went to night school at Englewood, Chicago, then played a year at Duluth Junior college in 1932 before matriculating at the University of Washington. In the 1934 season he was a substitute for Chuck Mucha, who was a member of the All-Star squad in 1935. For the last two years Starcevich was ranked as one of the greatest guards ever produced in the Pacific Coast conference and he was mentioned on many All-American teams before the fans of the nation honored him with election to the All-Star starting lineup for the game against the Packers.

Starcevich last year was chosen on such honor teams as the all-Polish, Lithuanian, and Serbian. Actually he is a Croatian. Every summer from 1925 to 1931, Max was employed in the South Chicago steel mills. He has worked for Wisconsin Steel company, the Illinois Steel company, and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company. He was graduated from the University of Washington last June in the school of education. On July 24 he married Ester Aune, Washington co-ed who was enrolled in the school of journalism.

Offense Up to Coach.

The type of offense which the All-Stars will be taught in the practice period which begins Saturday at Northwestern depends upon the wishes of the head coach. In previous years, the head coach has chosen the style of play he himself teaches his own squad. In 1934 Noble Kizer of Purdue taught his All-Star squad the Notre Dame type of offense. This same style was indicated in 1935 by Frank Thomas of Alabama. Last year Bernie Bierman of Minnesota employed an unbalanced line and a single wing back. It was one of Minnesota's favorite plays which completely fooled the Detroit Lions and sent Babe Le Voir shooting inside of the Detroit right end for a touchdown.

If Charles [Gus] Dorais of the University of Detroit, today's leader in the national poll to chose the All-Star's head coach, wins the election, presumably he will use the Notre Dame idea of attack as basic formation for the All-Star repertoire of plays. Should Lynn Waldorf, now in second place, defeat Dorais, the All-Stars will use an unbalanced line with a wing back.

The 67 players on the university squad undoubtedly will be proficient at either style. Blocking simmers down to individual efficiency and, at least as far as Reid and Starcevich are concerned, they are indifferent to the type of play chosen. Starcevich, playing under Coach Jimmy Phelan at Washington, is most familiar with the Notre Dame shift. Reid, naturally, knows Waldrof's system.

Dorais' Lead Increases.

Dorais' lead this morning is almost 900,000 points over Waldorf. Thousands of votes poured in to THE TRIBUNE yesterday. These can not all be tabulated until tomorrow. The final result will be printed Wednesday morning. Dorais now has received 972,647 first place votes as compared with 683,284 for Waldorf. The battle for second place is close. Elmer Layden has 3,226,562 points, 48,941 behind Waldorf. Layden, incidentally, has received the largest second place vote total of any coach.

Jimmy Phelan is in fourth place today with 2,477,220 points. Bernie Moore of Louisiana State university is fifth with 1,040,636 points. Bob Zuppke of Illinois, Pete Vaughan of Wabash, and H. O. [Fritz] Crisler of Princeton complete the list of coaches who have received more than 100,000 first place votes. Crisler took eighth place in the standings over Bo McMillin of Indiana a member of last year's coaching staf.

WEDS TRACK STAR.

Lawrence, Kas., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Miss Maxine Earhart, Steele City, Neb., was married today to Elwyn Deer, University of Kansas athletic director and intercollegiate shot putting champion while competing for Kansas.

Eddie Carroll and Salvadore Fight Tonight

Eddie Carroll, hard punching welterweight of Ottawa, Ont., tonight will return to the scene of his former triumphs when he meets George Salvadore in a ten round bout at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. The weight is 147 pounds, a poundage within easy reach of the aggressive fighter from Houston, Tex., but probably a trifle light for Carroll.

Eddie weighed 148 when he knocked out Chuck Woods in two rounds in his last appearance at Marigold Nov. 2. In previous encounters he was at 146½ when he defeated Toots Bernstein, at 146 when he stopped Scotty McLean, and 145 when he scored a technical knockout over Johnny Terry.

Fargo vs. Bowman.

Salvadore scaled 143½ when he lost a hard battle in ten rounds to Milt Aron at the North Side club July 19.

The winner of this evening's fight will be in line for a meeting with Milt Aron or Harold Brown, two of Chicago's most promising candidates for a shot at Barney Ross' title.

Jack Fargo, Winnetka 190 pound boxer, who has yet to meet defeat in the professional field, will hook up with Bernie Bowman, 227 pounder from the west side, in a five round contest preceding the main event. Fargo, who held Carl Vinciquerra to a draw at the Coliseum April 28, handed Bowman a licking in a previous meeting between the two on July 26.

Big Elza Thompson, 1937 Indianapolis sectional Golden Gloves titleholder, makes his Chicago debut as a professional in a four round scrap with Alex Kettles. Thompson made his first appearance as a money fighter by defeating the experienced Salvatore Ruggirello at Indianapolis June 17.

Johnny Brown Fights.

Jack Conley, Boston light heavyweight wrestler, and Al Williams, Fox Lake, will collide in a one hour encounter tonight at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. George Mansor clashes with Fred Grubmier in the thirty minute semi-windup.

FROEHLING WINS SINGLES TITLE IN PARKS TOURNEY

Disposing of Lars Loundgoot in a semi-final match yesterday morning, 6-4, 4-6, 9-7, Frank Froehling went on to win the Chicago public parks men's singles tennis championship by defeating Paul Zajakowski in the afternoon final, 6-4, 6-4, 6-1, at Garfield park.

Mitzie Radek won the women's singles title by defeating Estelle Stevens 6-4, 6-1, and the doubles team of Al Josephs and Les Harvey won from Lundgoot and Harold Olsen, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1.

Joe Finn Shoots 64 for New Record at Westgate Valley

Joe Finn, former Chicago district amateur champion, set a new course record of 64, 6 under par, at the Westgate Valley Country club yesterday. Finn clipped two strokes off the former record, made in 1935 by Dick Metz. Finn slipped over par only once, going one stroke over on the eighth hole. He had seven birdies on his rounds of 32—32.

Williams Wins Evanston Golf Title; Phalen Second

Steve A. Williams Jr. won the club championship at Evanston golf course yesterday by finishing the 54 hole medal play tournament with a score of 76—74—72—222. Ralph L. Phalen was second with 77—77—80—234.

Leader Must Be on Good Behavior in Trout Angling

BY BOB BECKER.

If there is any one part of the trout fisherman's tackle that must behave correctly when he is trying to float dry flies in a natural and attractive manner, it seems the leader should stand at the head of the list.

Several nights ago when we were fishing with P. H. D. in Forest county, Wisconsin, we hit a beautiful, deep pool in a small stream where the brook trout were rising just as the sun was dropping behind the timber. The fish were breaking the surface when we eased our rubber boat into casting position. We had dressed a dry fly and made our first cast toward deep water. And then came leader trouble.

P. H. D. spotted it the very first thing as we muttered and blessed the way the long leader refused to stretch out on the water. There was one kink in it, close to the dry fly. That loop arched above the surface and simply would not come down into position so that the entire leader would lie flat and neat on the water.

There was nothing to do but change leaders. So we took off the temperamental piece of Spanish gut and put on another. The brook trout were so active that we could hardly keep our eyes on the job. We would hear the thrilling plop of a rising fish first on our right and then to the left.

P. H. D., sitting in the stern of the rubber boat, kept his spent wing dry fly busy every minute while we vainly tried to hurry the job of changing leaders. We saw him pick a beautiful 14 inch fish from the deep water on our left after a perfect 85 foot cast that dropped the fly to the water with hardly a disturbing ripple.

The fight of this fish was a beauty. P. H. D. sort of cleaned his fly and then started to dry it with a number of short, false casts. His next cast brought a small acrobatic brook trout to the surface.

SAMMY HALE IS SPIKED, BEATEN IN DENVER MEET

Denver, Colo., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Sammy Hale, former Philadelphia Athletics' third baseman, was spiked on the face and hands in the semi-pro baseball tourney today, precipitating a player riot.

Police and umpires required 15 minutes to restore order between Hale's Pampa [Tex.] Oilers and the Negro All-Stars, who won 10 to 1.

Bell, center fielder, who formerly played in the Negro National league, and Hale exchanged punches freely after the former spiked Sammy while sliding into third. The free for all followed.

Hale was forced to retire. Slingin' Sam Baugh, former Texas Christian football star, replaced him.

20,000 SEE EAST COLORED STARS BEAT WEST, 7 TO 2

The East whipped the West, 7 to 2, yesterday at Comiskey park and took the lead, three games to two, in the annual colored all-star series. A crowd of 20,000 saw the fifth battle of the intersectional series and was treated to a brilliant exhibition until the East made a rout of the contest with three unearned runs in the eighth inning.

Mayor Kelly tossed out the first ball and almost immediately the bombardment started. Buck Leonard, husky first baseman for the East, sent a home run into the second deck of the right field seats in the second inning, and the East never was headed. The East picked up a pair of bargain runs in the fourth on a hit, three walks and an error.

West Fights Back.

Then Ted Strong put the West into the running by singling to drive in Lloyd Davenport, who had led off the fourth with a two base hit. I nthe sixth Strong tripled to the center field wall and continued to the plate when Chester Williams, the East's second baseman, fumbled the throw in.

Singles by W. Wright, Leonard and Mule Suttles gave the East its fourth run in the seventh.

Errors Help Winners.

Then in the eighth Dandridge led off with a single and stopped at third on a double by Bernie Day of Newark, the East's third pitcher. Benjamin flied out, but Wells was safe on Strong's error, Dandridge scoring. Two more scored when W. Wright doubled and left fielder W. Brown made a wild throw in. Score:

replaced Kennedy. Higgins and McNair were passed purposely, loading the bases. With the infield drawn in, Chapman tapped to Hayes, who juggled the ball too long for a double play or throw to the plate. He got Chapman at first for the second out but Foxx scored with the winning run.

SECOND GAME

The White Sox started off with a rush in the second game. They made two runs in the first inning before they were nipped by a double play. Kreevich singled with one out and scored on Walker's triple. Appling tapped to Higgins and Walker apparently was sunk at the plate. Higgins, however, threw to the screen, Walker scoring and Appling reaching second. Radcliff beat out a single past Ostermueller, Appling stopping at third, but Bonura lined into a double play.

The White Sox didn't make a hit in the second, third, fourth or fifth innings, but they resumed offensive operations in the sixth.

The Parade Starts.

Kreevich, who opened the first inning spree, duplicated his center field single of that inning and went to third on Walker's single to right center. Appling walked, filling the bases. Cronin fumbled Radcliff's bouncer, Kreevich scoring. Bonura forced Walker at the plate, Ostermueller to Desautels, but Piet singled to center, Appling scoring. Walberg replaced Ostermueller. Shea singled to center, Radcliff and Bonura scoring and Piet reaching third. Whitehead beat out an infield hit, scoring Piet. Hayes and Kreevich flied to Chapman.

After wasting a double by Appling and singles by Radcliff and Piet in the seventh, the White Sox added six runs after two were out in the eighth. Hayes singled and scored on Kreevich's triple. Walker walked and Appling singled, scoring Kreevich. Radcliff singled, loading the bases. Bonura knocked his No. 18 homer over the left field wall, scoring behind Walker, Appling and Radcliff. Piet struck out.

Tired White Sox Move to Detroit; Play Tomorrow

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Aug. 8.—The White Sox left this evening for Detroit, glad to escape from the east, though Detroit has been least hospitable of all teams prior to the harrowing experiences of the last week. The Sox will be idle tomorrow because of the train ride.

The Tigers have whipped the Sox seven out of ten so far this year.

Rain, which had been forecast as a cooling element, failed to arrive on schedule, and as a result the near capacity crowd of 28,000 today sweltered and steamed in the humid atmosphere.

The Red Sox management expects to hang 'em on the cornices here Wednesday. The Yanks will play a double-header and Boston still thinks its platinum boys have a chance.

Cavarretta's fly to left rolled off Johnson's finger tips for a double. Demaree and Frey scoring. Carleton lined a double over first base, scoring Cavarretta. Galan lined to Fletcher for the third out.

Prior to being nudged out of the no hit class only four Bees had reached base on Carleton. Warstler walked with one out in the first. After two were gone in the fourth, Cuccinello survived on Hack's bad throw and Moore walked. English followed with an easy tap to Mack. Di Maggio walked with two out in the sixth and Cavarretta picked Cuccinello's fly off the center field wall. Then, with two out in the seventh, Fletcher got his double to right center. Three strikes for Mueller came next.

SECOND GAME

The first hit off Fette resulted in a Cub run in the second game. Demaree coaxed a free ride from the Bee's star in the second, and on a hit and run play, Herman pushed a single past Cuccinello, who had started over to cover the base. Demaree went to third on the hit, O'Dea flied to Moore, whose arm is so good that Demaree decided to remain at third. He scored a moment later on Frey's fly to Johnson.

Root got by successfully in the first inning. Two hits in the third, however, were different. Di Maggio led off with a single to left and Cuccinello flied to Cavaretta. Then, after letting one wide pitch drift past Moore blew his season's twelfth homer over the boards in left center to put the Bees ahead by 2 to 1.

Cubs Miss Chances.

Root's last inning, the fifth, in which he injured his hand getting out of a jam, began with a single by Warstler. Collins came tearing in when he anticipated a bunt by Di Maggio and the fellow pushed the ball right past Rip for a single. After Cuccinello had sacrificed, Moore was purposely passed, filling the bases. English slammed a high powered grounder back at Root, who threw to the plate to force Warstler and O'Dea relayed the ball to Collins to double English.

Fette showed his class in the seventh when the Cubs, despite help from good old Uncle Charley Moran couldn't get the tying run across. O'Dea led off with a single and went to second on Frey's single. Cavarretta was thrown out by Fette, and Marty, who batted for Parmelee, was purposely passed, filling the bases. Galan grounded to Fletcher, whose throw to Mueller forced O'Dea at the plate. Mueller threw back to Fletcher and Galan seemed to be out with room to spare, but Moran ruled otherwise. Then, after the usual haggling, the third out was produced on Hack's smash to Fette.

They Finally Click.

The deciding eighth got away on Collins' single to center, and a wild pitch that put him on second. When Demaree filed to Johnson and Herman popped to Warstler it looked as if nothing would happen. But Fette walked O'Dea and after a passed ball had permitted the runners to advance Frey also walked to load the bases. Then Cavarretta shot his single through short, sending Collins and O'Dea across the plate. The inning closed with Shoun's bounder to Cuccinello.

The schedule grants the Cubs a day off today, but they'll go back to work tomorrow, in the opener of a three game series with Pittsburgh's Pirates. Larry French will southpaw against his former mates in the first game.

Bill Jurges expects to be operating at short again tomorrow. He went on vacation yesterday, as the result of soreness in his left shoulder which he wrenched while sliding into the plate in the seventh inning of Saturday's game.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

Rust Cuts Wheat Yield.

Aug. 8, 1937.

THRESHERS on the Tribune farms were disappointed with this year's wheat crop when they finished threshing this week and found that the yield on both places totaled only 898 bushels. The outlook a few weeks ago was for a wheat crop of 2,000 bushels.

Not only is the yield low but the quality of most of the wheat is poor. The 576 bushels produced on the Yorkville farm falls in the sample grade and will be used as live stock feed. This leaves the farms with only 322 bushels of wheat that can be sold for milling purposes. The farms are short 678 bushels of wheat that will meet the requirements of the futures contract for 1,000 bushels of No. 2 hard winter sold on the Chicago Board of Trade on June 22 for delivery in September at $1.08¾ a bushel.

Fund Short $42.50.

September wheat closed on the Chicago market yesterday at $1.13 a bushel, or 4¾ cents a bushel above the Tribune farms' contract price on 1,000 bushels. When the week ended the farms' margin fund of $500 put up with a broker was increased $35 over last week. The fund still is short $42.50.

The total yield of spring wheat at the Yorkville farm was 576 bushels from fifty-seven acres, or slightly more than ten bushels per acre. Until the grain heads started forming, the outlook was for a good crop, the farm manager estimating that the yield should be 25 to 30 bushels per acre.

Black stem rust hit the wheat just as it was heading out. Wheat that had shown promise of being a good crop was a poor one by harvest time. There were practically no plump kernels in the heads and when the wheat was threshed it weighed only forty pounds to the bushel, or two-thirds the normal weight.

Progress Yield Is Best.

The thirteen acres of the Progress variety made the best showing. This field threshed out 205 bushels, or 15.7 bushels per acre. The certified seed of this variety cost $2.25 a bushel and was sown on rich bottom ground at the rate of one and a half bushels per acre. The rust appeared worse here than on the other wheat, but the yield was nearly twice as much.

Forty-four acres of northern hard spring wheat grown on upland soil made only 371 bushels, or 8.4 bushels per acre. This wheat was sown at the rate of nearly two bushels to the acre and developed unusually well until hit by the rust.

The eighty acres of rye grown at the Yorkville place threshed out 1,915 bushels, slightly less than 24 bushels per acre. Rust did not damage the rye, but much of it grew so tall and lodged so badly that it was difficult to harvest and thresh.

Oats now are being threshed at the Yorkville farm. The men expect to finish the job about the middle of this week. The yield is thought to be only fair and the oats are weighing only 26½ to 29 pounds to the bushel. Thirty-two pounds per bushel is the standard weight for oats.

MRS. DAILEY, 63, WIDOW OF G. O. P. LEADER, IS DEAD

Mrs. Clara J. Dailey, widow of John Dailey, former state senator and Republican leader from Peoria, died yesterday in St. Francis' hospital, Evanston, after a long illness. She was 63 years old. She came to Chicago two years ago to live with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Knox, 1449 Fargo avenue.

Her husband died in July, 1929, at the age of 62. He first was elected to the general assembly as a representative in 1905. In 1908 he was elected state senator, holding that office more than 20 years.

Funeral services will be conducted today in the chapel at 1227 Devon avenue. Other services will be held in Peoria, where Mrs. Dailey will be buried Wednesday. Farmers Get Bigger Return on Grain Crop

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The Illinois farmer is getting 20 cents a bushel more for his wheat this year than he got last season. Oats are bringing him 10 cents a bushel more than a year ago. His corn [if he has any] is worth 40 cents more than last year at this season.

The better prices for wheat and oats are of prime importance because this is the season of the year when he is marketing those grains in heavy volume. Current corn prices are not as significant as an indicator of farm income because few farmers have any corn to sell at the present time. But they have a bumper crop in prospect.

Deferred Prices Lower.

There is a big difference, however, in the price quoted for corn for immediate delivery and prices quoted for delivery next December after the 1937 harvest. The latter is quoted at 70¼ cents a bushel while September futures are worth $1.02.

The price that the Illinois farmer is getting for his grain is indicative of the situation prevailing in all principal grain producing states. Prices being paid on the farm are sharply above a year ago in all sections of the country.

COLGATE PROFIT IN FIRST HALF OF '37 IS $1,715,606

Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company yesterday reported surplus net profits of $1,715,606 earned during the first six months of 1937. The half year's profits represented an earning of 50 cents per share of common stock, S. Bayard Colgate, president, said. This earning was determined after providing for regular preferred stock dividends and deducting a $500,000 loss incurred at the Jeffersonville, Ind., plant by Ohio river flood waters. The total surplus account was reported $9,153,276 on June 30.

Worthington Pump and Machinery corporation yesterday reported net income of $990,775 for the six months ended June 30, compared with net income of $162,529 in the corresponding 1936 period, an increase of more than 450 per cent.

August Kochs, president of Victor Chemical Works, Chicago, announced that profit of the company for the six months ended June 30, 1937, was $342,487, equal to 55 cents per share on the 621,000 shares of common stock outstanding. No comparable 1936 figures were given.

Texas Gulf Producing company, an oil concern, reported net income for the first half of this year of $483,107, equivalent to 51 cents a share on the 888,126 shares of common stock outstanding.

Twentieth Century-Fox Film.

Investors' Guide: Please send me a report on Twentieth Century-Fox Film corporation. F. T.

Answer: This concern is one of the largest units in the movie industry. It was formed originally in 1915 as Fox Film corporation, and prior to reorganization in 1933 was a leading factor in exhibition of motion pictures. Since that time it has concentrated on the production and distribution phases of the business.

Production is concentrated at Beverly Hills and Hollywood, where properties cover 190 acres of ground. The company also has studios in New York and achieves world-wide distribution of films.

The company assumed its present title in 1935, when it acquired Twentieth Century Pictures, Inc.

With improvement in theater attendance and moderate increases in box office prices, this company's revenues have climbed materially in the last two years. Revenues amounted to $27,565,000 and net income was $3,755,000 or $1.77 per common share in the 26 weeks ended June 26, 1937. This compared with gross of $24,295,000 and net income of $2,769,000 or $1.43 a share in the corresponding 1936 period.

Rising costs have partly offset increases in revenues, but moderate gains in net income are to be expected during the rest of this year. J. M. Schenck, chairman, recently forecast net of $11,000,000 from pictures during 1937, the second half of the year normally being more profitable than the first.

Revenues amounted to $54,032,000 and net income was $7,723,000 or $3.55 per common share in 1936, compared with $43,943,000 revenues and net income $3,090,000 or 86 cents a share in 1935. Other years are not comparable because of corporate changes.

Capitalization of 967,433 shares of $1.50 dividend preferred and 1,715,984 shares of no par common stock on June 26 reflects conversion of a large amount of preferred into common. The conversion rate is 1¼ common shares for each preferred share.

An initial dividend of $1 a share was paid on the present common in October, 1936, and a similar payment was made in December.

The Chase National bank owns about half of the preferred and one-sixth of the common. General Theaters Equipment corporation owns 11 per cent of common.

Air express business originating in Chicago in July this year totaled 39,879 pounds, against 35,515 pounds in June and 26,550 pounds in July, 1936, King reported.

REPUBLICAN HOUSE GROUP DEMANDS HALT TO GOLD PURCHASES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—(AP)—The Republicans on the house banking committee demanded today that the United States stop buying gold, pending some international agreement to "harmonize" currencies. They also suggested that part of the huge gold stock now on hand be applied to the reduction of the national debt.

"The United States has come to have in its treasury nearly twelve and a half billion dollars' worth of gold—more than half of all the gold in the world," said their statement as made public by Representative Luce of Massachusetts.

"Before the buying began five billion was found to be ample for our needs. The inactive gold serves no useful purpose whatever, but if applied to the reduction of the national debt would save the taxation now necessary to pay interest on bonds issued for borrowing money to buy the gold to be buried. We pay for the gold nearly, if not quite, twice the average cost of production. A large part of the huge profit accrues to the advantage of countries owing us big debts they will not even reduce."

Stocks Drift as 'Dog Days' Slow Trading

New York, Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Stocks wound up a week of dull summer "dog day" trading yesterday, with prices mixed through the six sessions of dealing, but no real drift of sentiment apparent. The new month opened with a moderate note of optimism following the good recovery of the preceding week, but share prices closed at a level slightly below that prevailing on Monday.

Mixed prices characterized trading through the week, 4,378,683 shares changing hands. Industrials started off with a sharp rise Monday, while rails and utilities worked to lower levels. Most groups moved lower Tuesday, but the rails and utilities rallied next day, only to sell off in the ensuing two days.

Profit taking in the steel and motor sections, fairly buoyant a week ago, was accompanied by persistent downward movement in the rails, reflecting agreement on an 8¾ per cent wage rise for non-operating rail employés and the virtual certainty that the railroads would accede to the demands of operating labor and lift wages for that class.

A slight recovery reaction Saturday brought industrials above the closing levels of a week ago, and rails back from the depths to a close that was unchanged from the preceding week.

The Dow-Jones averages showed for the week a high of 187.31 for the industrials, a low of 185.16 and net change of plus 0.80, based on the Saturday close of 186.41. Utility issues, according to this average, recorded a high of 30.02, a low of 26.68 and a net change of minus 1.17 points on the close of 28.92. Railroad issues had a high of 53.17, and a low of 52.08, closing unchanged at 52.95.

Price rumors during the week tended to make copper issues the strongest group in the list. Anaconda was up 5⅛ points, Kennecott 3 points, and Cerro de Pasco up 1⅞ on the five and one-half days.

Unusual Opportunity in Building Construction

The owner of a live, profitable, well established building material concern located in a fine community not far from Chicago considers selling his business for personal reasons. This is an opportunity seldom offered to someone seeking to go into business on his own and has many chances to increase the present activities. An investment of about $125,000 would be required with a substantial down payment and balance on convenient terms. No brokers may participate. Company is well located going concern with adequate equipment, modern plants and warehouse facilities. With the construction industry on the upgrade for a period of years, this offering merits and invites investigation. Replies treated in strictest confidence.
